INTRODUCTION

This Report of the Press Registrar is being submitted in two parts. Part I contains the general chapters giving, among other things, an analytical study of the statistics relating to newspapers and periodicals of various languages and of their circulation and ownership as in the year 1959. Part II contains a Statewise catalogue of all known newspapers in the country together with an index. The study in Part I has been made on the basis of UNESCO's classification of newspapers into General Interest Newspapers (which include dailies, non-dailies published at intervals of a week or less than a week), and Periodicals. In the general study, while the overall picture has been presented in terms of the total number of newspapers published in the country, the position in regard to publications which are, strictly speaking, not newspapers has been indicated separately. This pattern of study is expected to give a clearer picture of the Press, particularly of the daily Press, by separating those that are really newspapers and those that belong to the category of market reports, weather bulletins, etc. In Part II, in addition to the particulars of each paper given in earlier Reports, the average circulation during 1959 has also been given, with its break-up into copies sold and copies distributed free.

The Press Registrar's study in this Report is confined to the data relating to those particulars which have been prescribed under the Press and Registration of Books Act. It was suggested in Parliament that the scope of the study should be enlarged and that the Press Registrar should give in his Report more information relating to the organisational side of newspapers. If it is decided to expand the scope of information collected by the Press Registrar, it would be necessary for the Government to prescribe additional particulars under the Press and Registration of Books Act. It would also be necessary to consider whether the additional particulars should be entered in the Register of Newspapers maintained by the Press Registrar, besides the particulars already included in it, or utilised only for purposes of compiling general statistics. If additional particulars are included in the Register, information on those particulars in respect of individual newspapers would also be available to the public on application.

Since the Press Registrar has the power to call for additional information relating to the particulars already prescribed, it was considered that for the present steps should be taken to collect such additional information which would enlarge the scope of the study relating to the particulars already prescribed. For instance, the Act provides that names and addresses of owners of newspapers and such other particulars relating to ownership as may be prescribed may be collected. It is proposed to collect information about the capital invested in the newspaper industry. Necessary forms have been prepared and it may be possible to include this information in the next Report.

The basic data relating to the number of newspapers published in the country, their circulation, ownership, regularity of publication, etc. are now almost complete. Besides general information and statistics about the Press in India, this Report gives detailed information about the circulation trends in different categories of newspapers and the trends in the direction of common ownership of more than one newspaper.

It will be noticed that Annual Statements for 1959 in respect of most of the newspapers have been received. It has, therefore, been possible to collect the necessary data about 5,232 newspapers out of 7,651 on the Press Registrar's record. While it is proposed to invoke the penal clauses of the Act against those publishers who have failed to send in the annual return, it may be mentioned that out of 2,419 newspapers on the Press Registrar's record about which necessary information is not available, 467 are those that are, strictly speaking, not newspapers and belong to the category of market reports, school or college magazines, serialised fiction, etc. Another 623 are from amongst those that commenced publication in 1959 and did not send in Annual Statements, perhaps under the mistaken notion that it was not necessary for them to do so. Out of the other defaulters there may be some that were being irregularly published or had ceased publication towards the end of the year. The study of circulation, ownership, etc. may thus be taken to cover practically the entire Press in the country.

With the data being complete in respect of most of the continuing newspapers, it has been possible to undertake a more detailed study than could be attempted in previous years. For instance, an analysis of the number, circulation and standing of certain selected specialised and technical periodicals has yielded interesting results, showing the rapid progress made by this class of publications during the last ten years. The position of dailies has also been studied separately from the point of view of their number, circulation and their distribution in different languages and States. The relationship between the various types of ownership and the circulation commanded by them has also been indicated. The Report also presents a complete picture of the chains, groups and multiple units of newspapers in the country.

A trend that was noticeable in the development of the Press during the previous two years became more marked during 1959. There was an increase both in the number of papers and in the circulation commanded by them. There were 7,651 papers in existence on December 31, 1959, as against 6,918 at the end of 1958. It was significant that the number of new papers which started during 1959 was 23 per cent. higher than during the previous year. At the same time, the overall circulation increased by 11.2 per cent. in 1959. Daily newspapers, in fact, recorded an increase of 13·7 per cent. and the weeklies 13·8 per cent. over the figures for 1958. The increase in circulation during 1959 was shared by newspapers of all periodicals and of all languages. The increase in circulation of Hindi papers was 11·8 per cent. and in that of English papers 9·0 per cent.

The study of ownership shows that during 1959 the number of newspapers controlled by chains, groups and multiple units and their total circulation increased substantially, although the percentage of the total circulation commanded by them did not correspondingly improve. In fact, there was a decline in the percentage of the total circulation in the country commanded by chains, groups and multiple units which showed that the rise in circulation of individual newspapers was considerable and newspapers under common ownership, although more in number than in the previous year, did not register a corresponding increase.

There were some notable changes in the ownership of papers, the most important of them being the breaking up of the "Express" chain of papers and the separation of the Allahabad edition of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" from the Calcutta paper of the same name. These changes have been discussed in the Report and it has been pointed out how on examination of the ownership of the papers that had been split up, it was found that the effective ownership continued to be the same. It has, therefore, been decided to continue to treat them as chains for the purposes of the Press Registrar's study of common ownership.

The Press Registrar continues to receive the fullest co-operation from the State Governments and the District authorities in the administration of the Act and the arrangements arrived at with them for co-ordinated action are working smoothly. Apart from the help given by the State Governments and District authorities to the Press Registrar in the collection and verification of particulars relating to newspapers, they also see to it that the provisions of the Act are duly enforced. They bring to the Press Registrar's notice lapses on the part of publishers and, where permissible under the law, take action themselves. In previous years the Press Registrar had occasion to point out that some Magistrates continued to authenticate declarations without prior reference to the Press Registrar to ascertain the availability of the title under the proviso to Section 6. In this respect too there has been considerable improvement and the number of declarations authenticated during 1959 without reference to the Press Registrar has greatly declined.

A question that has been engaging the attention of the Press Registrar for some time and was also referred to by some Members during the debate on the Press Registrar's Report in the Lok Sabha on November 25, 1959, is how to verify the circulation claims of publishers. This question has a bearing not only on the Press Registrar's study of circulation trends, but also on the allocation of newsprint to newspapers. Although the circulation figures, given by publishers in their Annual Statements and certified by char-

other particulars relating to ownership as may be prescribed may be collected. It is proposed to collect information about the capital invested in the newspaper industry. Necessary forms have been prepared and it may be possible to include this information in the next Report.

A question that has been engaging the attention of the Press Registrar for some time and was also referred to by some Members during the debate on the Press Registrar's Report in the Lok Sabha on November 25, 1959, is how to verify the circulation claims of publishers. This question has a bearing not only on the Press Registrar's study of circulation trends, but also on the allocation of newsprint to newspapers. Although the circulation figures, given by publishers in their Annual Statements and certified by chartered accountants, may be presumed to be generally correct, cases do come up now and then where doubts arise about the circulation claims of publishers. In such cases the Press Registrar can make enquiries through such agencies as are available to him at present, but these enquiries have not yielded satisfactory results. It is, therefore, proposed to revise the form in which the publisher gives a declaration testifying to the accuracy of his statement as well as the form in which the chartered accountant or qualified auditor gives his certificate. Sample checks by a specially constituted team of investigators may also be undertaken. The publication of the circulation of individual papers in this Report may also help in checking exaggerated claims as those who have an idea of the circulation of a paper may bring any false claims to the notice of the Press Registrar.

The Press Registrar continued to be associated with the Commerce and Industry Ministry in the work of allocating newsprint to newspapers. Within the framework of the policy formulated by them, the Press Registrar advises the Commerce and Industry Ministry in determining the requirements of newspapers for import of newsprint and their other specialised requirements. He also helps them in the allocation of Nepa newsprint.

Towards the end of 1957 it was decided that newsprint should be allocated to newspapers in accordance with their actual requirements calculated on the basis of average number of pages, circulation and regularity of publication. Since these particulars were available with the Press Registrar, he was associated with the Commerce and Industry Ministry in determining the quota of newsprint to be allotted to each newspaper. In doing so, he has been able to ensure equitable distribution of newsprint to all newspapers, big or small, and has also helped them in resolving any difficulties that may come in their way. The Press Registrar keeps in touch with newspaper organisations and many individual newspapers also represent their difficulties to him. Within the policy laid down by the Commerce and Industry Ministry, he makes suitable recommendations on behalf of newspapers in such cases. In particular, the Press Registrar has been able to help small and medium-sized newspapers. For instance, some of the small newspapers, particularly Indian language newspapers, have been allowed an increase in the number of pages in order to standardise their size. Special facilities have also been arranged for supply of newsprint to small and medium-sized newspapers. Their requirements are now entirely met from canalised imports and facilities have also been provided for them to draw their quotas in instalments from Government-approved stockists who supply newsprint at a fixed price. The Commerce and Industry Ministry also maintains a buffer stock of newsprint, supplies out of which are available to newspapers if their normal shipments are delayed or for any unforeseen reason their stocks are exhausted. In the matter of machinery and other specialised requirements of newspapers also, the Commerce and Industry Ministry consults the Press Registrar who makes recommendations on the basis of the standing, circulation etc. of newspapers.

Each Annual Report of the Press Registrar published so far has carried on it the year to which the information contained in the Report was related and not the year in which it was compiled. For instance, the Report relating to the year 1958 mentioned that it was the Annual Report for 1958 and not 1959 when it was submitted. Under Section 19G of the Press and Registration of Books Act, it is provided that the Press Registrar shall prepare each year an Annual Report containing a summary of the information obtained by him during the previous year. The Report should, therefore, have marked on it the year in which it is submitted and not the year to which the information relates. The present Report is for 1960, although the information contained in it relates to 1959.

Since the Press and Registration of Books Act does not apply to the State of Jammu and Kashmir, no data relating to that State are included in this Report.

NEW DELHI;
April 29, 1960.

M. L. BHARDWAJ,
Registrar of Newspapers for India.

CHAPTER I

AMENDMENT OF THE ACT

In the last Report certain instances were cited where, either due to lacunae in the Press and Registration of Books Act or because of conflicting interpretations of some of its provisions, difficulties had been experienced in the administration of the Act. It was stated, for instance, that under the existing law there was no provision for cancelling a declaration once it had been filed, even if it was found to be defective or the title in respect of which the declaration had been filed was found to be the same as, or similar to, the title of an existing paper, which was not permissible. There had also been cases where a publisher started publication of his paper before the declaration had been authenticated by the Magistrate concerned. There is no specific provision in the Act under which such a publication could be held to be unauthorised, although it was felt that under the scheme of the Act a declaration could not be considered to be effective until it had been duly authenticated by the Magistrate before whom it was made and subscribed. It had also been noticed that the owner of a newspaper was not associated with the responsibility of its publication and printing. In the light of these anomalies and difficulties which came to notice in the course of the administration of the Act during the last few years, the provisions of the Act were thoroughly examined by the Press Registrar and proposals were formulated for their amendment. On the basis of these proposals, an amending Bill was introduced by the Minister for Information and Broadcasting in the Rajya Sabha on March 10, 1960. The proposed amendments are discussed below.

Owner's Responsibility

Under Section 5 of the Act, it is laid down that no newspaper shall be published in India except in conformity with the rules laid down. The amendments suggested in the Bill seek to meet the difficulties mentioned above. It provides, for instance, that every copy of a newspaper should contain the name of the owner thereof, in addition to the names of its printer, publisher and editor. It was suggested in Parliament during the debate on the Press Registrar's Annual Report that the name of the owner on whose behalf the paper is published should also be included in the imprint line in order to associate him with the responsibility for the printing and publication of the paper. It has further been provided that where the printer or the publisher of a newspaper making the declaration under sub-section (2) of Section 5 is not the owner thereof, the declaration shall specify the name of the owner and shall also be accompanied by an authority in writing from the owner authorising that person to make and subscribe such a declaration. A new declaration would be necessary whenever there is a change in the ownership of a paper. It has been provided specifically that whenever the ownership is changed the declaration of the paper shall cease to have effect and a new declaration shall be necessary before the publication of the paper can be continued.

By these amendments, it is proposed to associate the owner of a newspaper with the responsibility for its publication and printing. Since change of ownership is of particular importance in the context of the Working Journalists (Conditions of Service) Act, the proposed amendment that a declaration of the printer/publisher should be accepted only if it is authorised by the owner would help in the enforcement of that Act. The authority given by the owner, if there is a change of ownership, would naturally lapse and it would be necessary for the publisher and printer to file a fresh declaration under the authority of the new owner. The suggested amendment will also ensure that there is no infringement of the proviso to Section 6 of the Act regarding titles of newspapers published in the same language or in the same State, for when a new declaration is filed on a change of ownership, the Magistrate would get an opportunity to satisfy himself whether the title asked for is available or not in terms of that proviso. It will further ensure that any publisher/printer who is removed from service by the owner cannot continue to publish and print the newspaper without proper authorisation by the owner.

Rules for Publication of Newspapers

Among other changes proposed, under the Bill, in the rules for publication of newspapers are:

(a) Every copy of every newspaper shall contain the date of its publication. A scrutiny of papers received by the Press Registrar has revealed that some publishers of periodicals, particularly monthlies, do not print the date of publication on the issues of their papers. It has also been noticed that some old issues are put in the market with a new date line rubber-stamped on them. Thus some publishers claim regularity of publication. In order to check such practices, it is proposed to make a provision in the Act to the effect that each issue of a paper shall have printed on it the date of its publication.

(b) Declaration by the printer or publisher should be filed in the court of the Magistrate in whose jurisdiction the paper is proposed to be printed or published. Under the existing law, a declaration can be filed either before the Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the paper is proposed to be published or printed or before the Magistrate in whose jurisdiction the printer or publisher resides. It had been pointed out by some Magistrates that they could not accept declarations in respect of papers which were to be printed or published outside their jurisdiction, even if the printer or publisher resided within their area, for in such cases they would not be in a position to administer the provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act in relation to such papers. The new provision makes the position more precise without, at the same time, imposing any hardship on intending printers and publishers. If the place of publication or printing of a paper happens to be different from the place where the printer or publisher resides, he can always file a declaration through an authorised agent.

(c) Before a newspaper can be published, it shall be necessary that the declaration in respect of the newspaper made under Section 3, sub-section (2), should be authenticated under Section 6 of the Act. This provision, although implicit in the existing Act, is considered necessary, as cases have come to the notice of the Press Registrar where a newspaper started publication without waiting for the declaration in respect of that paper to be authenticated by the Magistrate concerned. Not only did this action of the publisher give no time to the Magistrate to enquire whether the title of the paper was the same as, or similar to, that of any other paper published in the same language or in the same State, but it also some times led to contravention of the proviso to Section 6 of the Act. Since the proviso to Section 6 enjoins it upon the Magistrate to satisfy himself regarding the availability of the title and gives him the discretion to refuse to authenticate a declaration if the title is the same as, or similar to, that of an existing paper, it is clear that the law contemplates a time-lag between the presentation of the declaration and its authentication. The declaration cannot obviously be considered valid until it has been authenticated by the Magistrate. If this were not so, the very purpose of the proviso to Section 6 would be defeated. Since the law was not specific, and certain publishers pleaded that provisions of Section 5 were not subject to those of Section 6 and, therefore, they need not wait for the declaration to be authenticated by the Magistrate before starting the paper, it was considered necessary to make a provision to the effect that before a paper is published a declaration made under Section 5(2) and authenticated under Section 6 shall be necessary.

A specific case involving such a disputed interpretation of the law was that of the "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" of Allahabad. The paper was formerly being published under the title "Amrita Bazar Patrika" as a simultaneous edition of the Calcutta paper of the same name. When the ownership of the Allahabad paper was transferred to a new company, the publisher asked for the title "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" and filed a declaration for that title before the Magistrate concerned. Before the Magistrate had authenticated the declaration, after enquiries regarding the availability of the proposed title, the paper commenced publication. Since the declaration had not been authenticated the publication of the paper was regarded as unauthorised. The publisher took the plea that he had filed a declaration as required under Section 5(2) and whether it had been authenticated or not, he could start his paper. Action was taken against the publisher under Section 15 of the Press and Registration of Books Act for publishing his paper in contravention of the Rules. The paper, however, ceased publication after publishing a few issues and, on the publisher giving an assurance that there was no intention, on his part, of contravening the provisions of the Act and that he had no intention of reviving the "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika", the case was withdrawn.

(d) Whenever the title of any newspaper or its language or its periodicity of publication is changed, the declaration shall cease to have effect and a new declaration shall be necessary before the publication of the newspaper can be continued. The existing law provides that as often as the place of printing or publication of a paper changes a new declaration shall be necessary. There is no specific provision for a new declaration if the title, language or periodicity of a paper is changed. Since a change in the title, language or periodicity materially alters the character of a paper it is essential that a new declaration should be filed whenever there is such a change.

(e) Whenever the printer or publisher is by infirmity or otherwise rendered incapable of carrying out his duties for a period exceeding 30 days in circumstances not involving the vacation of his appointment, a new declaration shall be necessary. The relevant rule at present provides for a new declaration to be filed when the printer or publisher leaves India for a period exceeding 30 days. No provision exists to cover cases where the publisher or printer is unable, through infirmity or otherwise, to carry out his responsibilities for a similar period. A case came to the notice of the Press Registrar where the name of a publisher and printer of a newspaper, although he was detained in jail for some months, continued to appear as the printer and publisher of that newspaper. To cover such cases, and also to provide a certain period of time within which a new declaration should be filed in the event of the existing publisher or printer's death, the proposed amendment has been suggested.

(f) The editor, printer and publisher of any journal published in India should ordinarily be resident in India. This is not only implied in the existing provisions of Section 3 which refers only to newspapers printed "in India", and of Section 5(4) which provides for a fresh declaration whenever a printer or publisher leaves India for a period exceeding 30 days, but is also necessary for the purpose of fixing responsibility under the law on a particular person and making him take the consequences of such a responsibility.

In the last Report the question of publication of foreign journals in India was discussed in relation to the application of the provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act to such publications. An application was made to the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Bombay, for filing a declaration and it was made clear in the application that the publication under the title asked for was intended to be the Indian edition of an American magazine of the same name. The magazine, it was stated, would be published in India but printed abroad and the editor also would be resident in a foreign country. Subsequently, the publisher informed the Magistrate that he was arranging for the paper to be printed in India. Since it was implicit in the scheme of the Act that the editor, printer and publisher of any journal published in India should be ordinarily resident in India, the declaration of the proposed magazine was not authenticated by the Magistrate. If the editor, printer or publisher were not a resident of India, it was considered that he would not be subject to the laws of the land and, therefore, the very purpose of the Act would be defeated. Since the law was not precise on this point, it has been considered necessary to make a specific provision laying down that the editor, printer and publisher of a paper published in India should ordinarily be resident in India.

Authentication of Declaration

Some amendments to other Sections of the Press and Registration of Books Act relating to the publication of newspapers are also proposed in the amending Bill. In the proviso to Section 6 which relates to the authentication of declarations made in respect of newspapers under Section 5 of the Act, it is proposed that all such authentications should be done in consultation with the Press Registrar. When this proviso was added to Section 6 in 1955, it was laid down that the Magistrate before whom a declaration was filed should not authenticate it unless he was satisfied "from such enquiries as he thinks fit to make from the Press Registrar or otherwise that the newspaper proposed to be published did not bear a title which was the same as, or similar to, that of any other paper published either in the same language or in the same State". Although the Press Registrar alone had an all-India record of titles of newspapers published in various languages, the provision under Section 6 in this regard gave the discretion to the Magistrate to satisfy himself from enquiries either from the Press Registrar or otherwise about the availability of the title. In many cases it was noticed that Magistrates authenticated declarations on their own and this some times led to contravention of the proviso to Section 6. Since cancellation of declaration, even if it was in contravention of any provision of the Act, was not possible under the existing law, there was duplication of titles in some cases. On the other hand, if a Magistrate, on receiving the advice of the Press Registrar, called upon the publisher to change the title of his newspaper it was found that it caused great inconvenience to the publisher if he had already started publication. Through an amendment of the proviso it is now sought to obviate the possibility of such situations arising in future. Under the proposed amendment every Magistrate will have to enquire from the Press Registrar about the availability of the title before the declaration in respect of that title is authenticated by him.

It is further proposed to provide that the Magistrate before whom a declaration is made and subscribed should supply, as soon as possible, a copy of the authenticated declaration or a copy of the order refusing to authenticate the declaration, to the person making or subscribing the declaration as well as to the Press Registrar. This procedure is considered necessary since it is now being unequivocally laid down that no paper can start publication unless its declaration has been authenticated by the Magistrate before whom it is filed. A copy of the authenticated declaration will, in fact, serve as a sanction for the publisher to commence publication of his paper.

Cancellation of Declarations

It has been stated above that so far there is no provision in the Press and Registration of Books Act which would enable a Magistrate to cancel a declaration if it is found that its authentication contravenes the provisions of the proviso to Section 6, or if the declaration is found defective in law, or for any other reason. In many such cases the declaration had to be allowed to stand as such and the contravention of the law could not be set right. The result has been that papers whose titles were the same as, or similar to, those of existing papers continued to be published. The amending Bill seeks to make provision for meeting such situations by adding the following as Section 8B in the original Act:

"If, on an application made to him by the Press Registrar or any other person or otherwise, the Magistrate empowered to authenticate a declaration under this Act, is of opinion that any declaration made in respect of a newspaper should be cancelled, he may, after giving the person concerned an opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken, hold an enquiry into the matter and if, after considering the cause, if any, shown by such person and after giving him an opportunity of being heard, he is satisfied that—

- (i) the newspaper in respect of which the declaration has been made, is being published in contravention of the provisions of this Act, or rules made thereunder; or
- (ii) the newspaper mentioned in the declaration bears a title which is the same as, or similar to, that of any other newspaper published either in the same language or in the same State; or
- (iii) the printer or publisher has ceased to be the printer or publisher of the newspaper mentioned in such declaration; or
- (iv) the declaration was made on false representation or on the concealment of material fact or in respect of a periodical work which is not a newspaper;

the Magistrate may, by order, cancel the declaration and shall forward as soon as possible a copy of the order to the person making or subscribing the declaration and also to the Press Registrar."

Procedure for Appeals

Under Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, a Magistrate can refuse to authenticate a declaration if he is satisfied that the title proposed in the declaration is the same as, or similar to, that of a paper published in the same State or in the same language. Under the new provision, mentioned in the above paragraph, which is to be added by the amending Bill, a Magistrate can also cancel a declaration in certain specified circumstances. In order to enable publishers to seek redress against a refusal to authenticate a declaration or against an order of cancellation, a procedure for appeals is proposed to be laid down. Section 8C, to be added by the amending Bill, provides as follows:

- "(1) Any person aggrieved by an order of a Magistrate refusing to authenticate a declaration under Section 6, or cancelling a declaration under Section 8B, may, within sixty days from the date of such order, communicated to him, prefer an appeal to the Appellate Board to be called the Press and Registration Appellate Board consisting of a Chairman and another member to be appointed by the Central Government:

Provided that the Appellate Board may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal in time.

- (2) On receipt of an appeal under this Section, the Appellate Board may, after calling for the records from the Magistrate and after making such further inquiries as it thinks fit, confirm, modify or set aside the order appealed against.

- (3) Subject to the provisions contained in sub-section (2) the Appellate Board may, by order, regulate its practice and procedure.
- (4) The decision of the Appellate Board shall be final."

Under Section 15 of the Act it has been provided that whoever shall edit, print or publish any newspaper without conforming to the rules laid down in the Act or whoever shall edit, print or publish or shall cause to be edited, printed or published any newspaper knowing that the said rules have not been observed with respect to that newspaper, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished with fine not exceeding two thousand rupees, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or both.

This section lays down a penalty for infringement of the rules relating to editing, printing and publishing of newspapers but there is no provision for cases where a publisher, even after his conviction, continues the default. It is, therefore, proposed to add a sub-section to Section 15 providing that the Magistrate may, in addition to the punishment imposed, also cancel the declaration in respect of the offending newspaper.

Higher Penalty

Under the amending Bill it is also proposed to delete clause (b) of Section 19K. This Section lays down a penalty which may extend to Rs. 500 if the publisher of any newspaper—

- (a) refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of section 19D or section 19E; or
- (b) furnishes or causes to be furnished to the Press Registrar any annual statement, returns, statistics or other information which he has reason to believe to be false; or
- (c) publishes in the newspaper in pursuance of clause (b) of section 19D any particulars relating to the newspaper which he has reason to believe to be false.

As the offence under clause (b) is covered by Section 14 of the Act it has not been found necessary to retain it. It was also felt that the offence mentioned in clause (b) is of a more serious nature than the offences under clauses (a) and (c) and, therefore, a higher penalty was necessary as has been provided in Section 14.

Issue of Certificates

On receiving from the Magistrate a copy of the declaration in respect of a newspaper, the Press Registrar is required under the existing law to cause relevant entries to be made in the Register of Newspapers in respect of that newspaper and issue a Certificate of Registration. In actual practice this procedure has been found to be impracticable. It some times happens that although a declaration has been filed in respect of a paper, it does not actually commence publication. If entries have to be made on receipt of a copy of the declaration from the Magistrate before whom the declaration has been filed, many of them may prove to be infructuous and may have to be cancelled later when it becomes known that the papers never commenced publication. The Register of Newspapers will, therefore, not be a correct record of papers published in the country. Section 19C of the principal Act is, therefore, proposed to be amended to make it clear that the Press Registrar shall make entries in the Register of Newspapers and issue a Certificate of Registration to a paper only when the newspaper has actually started publication.

Changes in Rule-making Powers

Under Sections 20 and 20A of the Act the State and Central Governments, respectively, have been given the power to make rules for the administration of the Act. In order to ensure effective administration of these rules, the amending Bill makes a provision that any rule, made under any provision of the Act, may provide that contravention of the rule shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Section 21 of the Act authorises State Governments to exclude any class of books or papers from the operation of the whole or any parts of the Act by notification in the Official Gazette. Since the administration of those provisions of the Act which relate to newspapers is also the responsibility of the Central Government, it has been provided in the amending Bill that no notification under this Section shall be issued without consulting the Central Government.

CHAPTER II

PROBLEMS OF ADMINISTRATION

As in previous years, a number of cases were referred to the Press Registrar, during 1959, involving either the question of interpretation of some of the provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act or some problems relating to its administration. These references came either from State Governments or Magistrates or publishers of newspapers. They were examined by the Press Registrar, in consultation with the Government's legal authorities, wherever necessary, and his advice was conveyed to those from whom the references had come.

Apart from these references the postal authorities sought the Press Registrar's assistance in enforcing a new concessional rate introduced by them to meet the demand of certain types of periodicals.

The question of ascertaining the correct circulation of newspapers, which is of considerable importance in the context of the Press Registrar's study of circulation trends and the distribution of newsprint to newspapers, was further examined and proposals were formulated for devising an effective machinery for checking circulation claims and for carrying out sample checks.

Checks on Circulation Claimed by Publishers

Under the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956, every publisher has to submit to the Press Registrar an annual statement about circulation giving separately (a) the average number of copies printed per publishing day, (b) the average number of copies sold, and (c) the average number of copies distributed free (including complementary, voucher, exchange, bonus, sample and office copies). In respect of newspapers where the average number of copies printed per publishing day exceeds 2,000, the statement of the publisher has to be countersigned by a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor. Small newspapers with a circulation of less than 2,000 are exempted from submitting a chartered accountant's certificate about their circulation. Similar exemption has also been given in the case of publications issued by educational institutions, charitable societies or associations which publish newspapers generally for the use of their members and not for sale.

Machinery for Check

Thus it would be noticed that the only check on claims of circulation prescribed under the law is that where the circulation exceeds 2,000 a certificate from a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor should be furnished. Under the Rules, the Press Registrar has the authority to verify the statements furnished to him by a publisher. There is, however, no machinery available to the Press Registrar for scrutinising the claims of publishers regarding circulation.

In the course of the debate on the Press Registrar's Annual Report in Parliament, some Members suggested that suitable machinery should be devised to check claims of circulation. The Press Registrar has also, on occasions, received complaints—anonymous or otherwise—stating that the circulation claimed by a particular publisher was exaggerated. Not only do such false claims vitiate the correctness of the statistics compiled by the Press Registrar, but they also lead to allocation of newsprint in excess of actual requirements as licensing of newsprint by the Commerce and Industry Ministry is done on the basis of records maintained by the Press Registrar.

An effort has been made to utilise the machinery of State Governments to verify circulations of newspapers. Whenever a complaint was received, or there was sufficient reason to believe that the circulation claimed was exaggerated, State Governments were requested to make confidential enquiries in the matter. In some cases, State Governments confirmed the circulation claimed by the publisher, but there have been a few cases where the State Government stated that the circulation claimed was far in excess of the actual circulation of the newspaper. When they were requested to furnish detailed evidence on which the estimate of circulation was based, it was found that although the information furnished by the State Government was based on reliable enquiries, there was hardly any substantial evidence on the basis of which the publisher could be prosecuted for giving false information.

Inspection of Records

For the purpose of collection of any information relating to a newspaper, the Press Registrar, under the Act, can authorise any gazetted officer to have access to any relevant record or document relating to the newspaper in the possession of the publisher thereof, and he may inspect or take copies of the relevant records or documents or ask any questions necessary for obtaining any information required to be furnished under the Act. This power has not so far been invoked as it is felt that this would necessitate employment of a large investigation staff competent to scrutinise records and documents and obtain information necessary to establish whether the circulation claimed by the newspaper is correct or exaggerated. Another consideration is that a certificate by a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor should ordinarily be enough authentication of the claim made by a publisher of a newspaper. Chartered accountants and auditors are governed by a code of conduct laid down by the Institute of Chartered Accountants.

Even so, cases do come up, now and then, where doubts arise about the circulation claimed by a publisher in his annual statement and certified by a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor, for instance, where a paper claims a 100 per cent. increase within one year. Some times complaints are received by the Press Registrar from persons who claim to know the real position regarding the circulation of a paper and from whose statements the claim of the publisher appears to be, prima facie, wrong.

It has been felt that the present form in which a chartered accountant countersigns the annual statement submitted by a publisher is not satisfactory as it does not specifically state that the chartered accountant takes the responsibility for the accuracy of the circulation claimed by the publisher, nor does it specify the basis on which the chartered accountant is certifying the circulation. The declaration made by the publisher at the end of the circulation statement regarding its accuracy also needs to be made more specific.

It is, therefore, proposed to revise the form in which the publisher makes his declaration in such a way as to cast a legal responsibility on him for the accuracy of the contents of the annual statement. A revised form for the chartered accountant to give his certificate is also being drawn up. The new form will make it clear that the chartered accountant has examined the account books and received the information and explanations required by him relating to the contents of the books, including information that should find a place in the books and is not contained therein. The chartered accountant will then express his opinion as regards the accuracy of the particulars shown in the annual statement. It is also proposed to prepare "Notes for Guidance" both for publishers and auditors. Those for publishers are intended to help them to maintain their records in an appropriate manner, while those for auditors will be in the nature of a guide for carrying out their examination of the publishers' records.

Meanwhile, sample checks on the circulation claims of newspapers will be undertaken by the Press Registrar in co-operation with the Ministry of Commerce and Industry which, as the authority issuing licences for import of newsprint, is also concerned with checking the circulation claims of newspapers. In each case to be investigated the Press Registrar will be assisted by an officer of the Commerce and Industry Ministry and an Accounts Officer.

It has also been decided this year to give in the Annual Report the circulation of individual newspapers, specifying the number of copies sold and distributed free and indicating whether the circulation has been certified by a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor or not. Apart from providing useful information, this step is calculated, indirectly, to bring to light any exaggerated claims regarding circulation made by publishers, for those in the newspaper industry itself have generally a fairly accurate idea of a paper's circulation and any unjustified claims might be challenged.

Enquiry from State Government

A State Government asked the Press Registrar to suggest some satisfactory method by which the circulation of newspapers could be correctly ascertained. It was pointed out that the matter was of considerable importance as one of the factors that the State Government had to take into consideration in selecting papers for giving Government advertisements was their circulation. In the case of papers that were members of the Audit Bureau of Circulation, the certificate given by the Bureau was accepted as correct, but there were no means of checking the circulation of other papers. The State Government felt that the claims made by them, even though supported by a chartered accountant's certificate, were not always correct.

The State Government were informed by the Press Registrar that the question of devising an effective method of checking the circulation of newspapers was under examination. Meanwhile, if they had any doubt about the accuracy of the circulation claimed by a paper, they could refer it to him. He would then check the circulation with his own records and if there was a discrepancy between the circulation of the paper as shown in the Press Registrar's records and as supplied to the State Government, the latter would be advised regarding further action to be taken.

Foreign Journals Published in India

The position regarding publication of foreign journals in India was discussed in the Report for 1958 and it was stated that it was implied in the scheme of the Press and Registration of Books Act that the publisher, printer and editor of a journal published in India should be ordinarily resident in India. As has been pointed out in the chapter on Amendment of the Act a provision to this effect is now being included in the Act.

A specific case arose out of a request by an Indian publisher to file a declaration for publishing an Indian edition of an American monthly magazine, which was to be printed and edited outside India. On the grounds that the editor would not be resident in India, authentication of declaration was refused.

Subsequently it was noticed that copies of the publication carried an imprint line which indicated that it was published both from London and Bombay and was printed at two presses, one in West Germany and the other in Bombay. On enquiry the Bombay printers explained that only the cover of the Indian edition was printed by them and the inside pages were printed in Germany, copies of which were supplied to the Bombay press. It was, therefore, claimed on behalf of the journal that it did not come within the purview of the Press and Registration of Books Act and that the printer's and publisher's declarations were not necessary.

It was felt that since London and Bombay were both mentioned in the imprint line as places of publication and part of the journal was also printed in India, the publication of the magazine without a declaration under Section 5 of the Press and Registration of Books Act was in contravention of the law. There are a number of publications in India which are printed at two presses, part at one press and part at another, and the publisher and printer are required to mention the names of both presses in their declarations, thus ensuring that they take the responsibility for what is printed at either press.

In view of the above facts, the State Government were asked to issue a notice to the publisher to show cause why action should not be taken against him under Section 15 of the Press and Registration of Books Act for publishing a journal in contravention of the provisions of the Act.

New Rate for Postal Concession

During the year under review the Postal Department introduced a new concessional rate for transmission by post of such periodicals as did not conform to the definition of "newspaper" as given in the Indian Post Office Act. The new rate was, however, to be allowed to such periodicals only if they were registered with the Press Registrar.

The definition of "newspaper" laid down in Section 9 of the Indian Post Office Act says that "every publication, consisting wholly or in great part of political or other news or of articles relating thereto or to other current topics with or without advertisements, shall be deemed a newspaper subject to the following conditions, namely,

- (a) that it is published in numbers at intervals of not more than 31 days;
- (b) that it has a bona fide list of subscribers."

In 1953 the postal authorities ordered a scrutiny of the periodicals that were being posted at various post offices in the country at the concessional rate prescribed for newspapers. This scrutiny revealed that a fairly large number of periodicals which were transmitted by the Postal Department at the concessional rate did not conform to the above definition inasmuch as they did not consist wholly or in great part of political or other news or articles relating thereto or to other current topics. The Department held the view that "in great part" meant that at least 50 per cent. of the contents of a periodical should be of this nature. Amongst the periodicals that did not fulfil this condition there were many that consisted mainly of short stories or serialised fiction and such other material. The department, therefore, refused to renew the registration of such publications, thus depriving them of the benefit of concessional postal rates. Although action had been taken in this regard during the previous years too, it was in 1959 that, as a result of a concentrated check-up, a number of periodicals were refused renewal of registration.

This led to representations from a large number of periodicals which had until then enjoyed concessional postal rates, and writ petitions were filed in the Allahabad, Bombay and Punjab High Courts.

The matter was re-examined by the authorities concerned in consultation with newspaper interests and it was decided that in cases where the renewal of registration had been refused as a result of the strict interpretation of the definition of "newspaper", it should be granted temporarily until a final decision in the matter was reached. It was also decided that for the purposes of granting postal concession a more liberal interpretation of the definition may be accepted.

It was subsequently decided to introduce a special concessional postal rate for periodicals which, although, they did not strictly conform to the definition of "newspaper" as given in the Indian Post Office Act, were registered with the Press Registrar. It may be stated here that the Press Registrar registers all periodicals which are published under a valid declaration and have a fixed periodicity. These include publications containing serialised fiction, short stories, market reports, etc. The new proposal of the Posts and Telegraphs Department was, therefore, beneficial to all periodicals and a notification was issued under which periodicals which did not come within the purview of the definition of "newspaper" as given in the Post Office Act were to be transmitted by the Post Offices at the rate of 8 nP up to 10 tolas and 3 nP for every additional 5 tolas. This was, however, subject to the condition that the periodical, in question, was registered with the Registrar of Newspapers and bore in print in any convenient place, either on the first or last page thereof, the superscription "Registered with the Registrar of Newspapers for India under No.".

In order to help publishers, particularly new publishers, the Press Registrar has been issuing registration numbers to periodicals in whose case it has not been possible immediately to issue a registration certificate.

CHAPTER III

DECLARATIONS AND TITLES OF NEW PAPERS

A total number of 6,158* declarations in respect of 4,549 newspapers were received by the Press Registrar from Magistrates all over the country during 1959. This marked an increase of nearly 15 per cent. in the number of declarations filed as compared to the previous year. There was also a marked increase in the total number of new papers which commenced publication during 1959. Compared to 1958 when 1,062 newspapers were known to have commenced publication, the number of newspapers which came into existence during 1959 rose to 1,302 showing an increase of nearly 22·5 per cent. over the previous year. .

Of 6,158 declarations in respect of 4,549 newspapers received during 1959, there were 1,955 declarations which were in respect of 1,482 existing newspapers. These declarations were filed on account of changes of either the printer/publisher or place of printing/publication or change of language or of periodicity. Another 764 declarations were filed under Section 8 of the Press and Registration of Books Act by persons who had previously made and subscribed declarations under Section 5 of the Press and Registration of Books Act and had subsequently ceased to be printers or publishers of their respective newspapers. The remaining 3,439 declarations were in respect of 2,387 new newspapers proposed to be started. Out of these, 1,302 newspapers are known to have commenced publication during the year, 1,277 within the time limit prescribed under Section 5(5) of the Act and 25 after it. The printers/publishers of the latter category were asked to file fresh declarations as the earlier ones had lapsed. In respect of 402 newspapers the Press Registrar, in response to an enquiry, was informed that the publisher/printer had given up the idea of publishing the newspaper. Another 46 newspapers which started in 1959 also ceased publication during the year. There was no information in respect of 683 newspapers proposed to be started as the publishers/printers who had filed the declarations failed to respond to enquiries made by the Press Registrar and presumably they had also given up the intention of starting the newspapers.

While declarations of existing newspapers which might be filed on account of changes of either printer/publisher or place of printing/publication or on account of periodicity are accepted straightaway by Magistrates authorised to authenticate declarations in that behalf, enquiries have to be made regarding the availability of the title if an existing newspaper wishes to change the language of its publication and in respect of new titles of newspapers. Under Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, it is provided that any declaration made and subscribed under Section 5 in respect of a newspaper shall not, save in the case of a newspaper owned by the same person, be authenticated unless the Magistrate is satisfied from such enquiries as he thinks fit to make either from the Press Registrar or otherwise that the newspaper proposed to be published does not bear a title which is the same as, or similar to, that of any other newspaper published either in the same language or in the same State. Although this provision under the existing Act gives the option to the Magistrate to make an enquiry about the availability of the title from the Press Registrar or otherwise, it has administratively been arranged that Magistrates should refer titles of all new publications to the Press Registrar for verification. This was considered necessary in order to avoid contravention of the provisions of Section 6. Since the Press Registrar alone has a complete record of all existing newspapers published in the country, and he is also kept informed of all the new declarations authenticated by Magistrates, it is reference to this record alone which can indicate whether the proposed title is not the same as that of an existing newspaper published either in the same State or in the same language.

*The difference between the number of declarations and newspapers is due to the fact that separate declarations by the printer and the publisher have to be filed unless the two happen to be the same person.

In 1959 a total number of 3,953 titles of proposed newspapers were referred to the Press Registrar for verification by Magistrates all over the country. There were 414 titles of new newspapers which were accepted by Magistrates without reference to the Press Registrar which represented a little over 10 per cent. of the total number of new titles sought by publishers. Compared to the previous years, this recorded a marked improvement because in 1957 as many as 67 per cent. and in 1958 about 33 per cent. of the declarations in respect of new publications were authenticated without consulting the Press Registrar. This shows that Magistrates are becoming progressively alive to the necessity of verifying the title of a new paper before authenticating the declaration in respect thereof. It is, however, now proposed, as mentioned in the Chapter 'Amendment of the Act', to amend Section 6 of the Act so that it should be incumbent upon the Magistrates to consult the Press Registrar before authenticating a declaration.

Of 414 declarations in respect of new papers which were accepted during 1959 without a reference to the Press Registrar, it was noticed that 77 contravened the proviso to Section 6 of the Act. On the request of the Press Registrar, Magistrates concerned were able to persuade 22 publishers to change the title of their publication. In six cases papers ceased after starting publication and in two cases the titles became available as it was found that the papers with conflicting titles were no more in existence. In all these cases publication of new newspapers under the same or similar titles as those of existing newspapers was thus avoided, but unfortunately in 47 cases the contravention of the Act could not be avoided as there was no power under the Act under which a declaration already authenticated by a Magistrate could be cancelled. Therefore, these publications, although bearing the same or similar titles to that of existing newspapers, have continued.

Of the 3,953 titles of new newspapers referred to the Press Registrar for advice, 3,293 titles were cleared as they were not the same as or similar to that of any other existing newspaper and it was recommended to the Magistrates concerned to accept them. In the case of 604 titles, it was noticed that 543 were the same as or similar to the titles of existing newspapers and, therefore, the Magistrates were advised not to authenticate them as that would be in contravention of Section 6 of the Act. Contrary to the experience in previous years, it was possible during 1959 to advise Magistrates on the availability or otherwise of proposed titles for new publications more expeditiously. This was possible because the records maintained by the Press Registrar are now nearly complete, and in as many as 3,746 cases referred to him, advice was tendered on the basis of records available with the Press Registrar. In 207 cases it was necessary to make enquiries from State Governments or Magistrates concerned whether the proposed titles were not the same as or similar to certain newspapers supposed to be published from their area but about whose existence or otherwise definite information was still not available with the Press Registrar. This naturally took time. Still on the basis of the information supplied by State Governments, 126 of these titles were recommended for acceptance while 25 were found objectionable in terms of the proviso to Section 6 of the Act. At the end of the year, there were only 56 cases still pending for final disposal because the information called for from State Governments was not received.

Of the 59 cases which were pending at the end of 1958, 35 titles were finally recommended for acceptance while the remaining 24 were found to be the same as or similar to those newspapers whose existence had been certified by the State Governments.

Disposal of Verification Cases

There have been some complaints that there is delay in the disposal of cases referred to the Press Registrar by Magistrates for verification of titles under proviso to Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act. It may, therefore, be explained here that the large majority of references from Magistrates are dealt with expeditiously, generally within a week or ten days. There is delay in those cases where the title asked for is the same as or similar to that of another paper about the existence of which no definite information is available with the Press Registrar. An enquiry has, therefore, to be addressed to the State Government to ascertain whether the paper in question is in existence or not. In all such cases, however, the Magistrate is informed that no advice regarding the availability of the title can be given until the result of the enquiry made from the State Government is known and the publisher who has asked for the title has the choice either to wait until that particular title becomes available or to select some other title.

In 1956 and 1957, when the Press Registrar was still in the process of collecting information about newspapers published in the country and his records were far from complete, the number of enquiries addressed to State Governments to ascertain the existence of papers before disposing of references from Magistrates under Section 6 was considerable. Since then, however, this number has been on the decline as the Press Registrar's records are now more complete and up to date. In 1958, only in 10 per cent. of the references received from Magistrates was it necessary to ascertain from State Governments whether certain papers were in existence or not. In 1959 this percentage came down to less than five.

Even what delay there is in the disposal of verification cases can be obviated if intending publishers give a list of titles, instead of one title only, when applying to a Magistrate for filing a declaration to start a paper. In some States, under advice from the State Governments, Magistrates have made it a practice to insist that a list of names be submitted to them by publishers of proposed newspapers. This procedure not only enables the Press Registrar to give his advice regarding the availability of titles to the Magistrates promptly but also saves the publisher the inconvenience of making repeated applications.

Another point which may be noted by intending publishers with advantage is that the list of titles given in the index attached to the Press Registrar's Report is not indicative of the latest position regarding availability of titles. This list gives the titles that were in existence on December 31 of the previous year and subsequent to that date many more titles may have been taken by publishers, for titles are being proposed and accepted by Magistrates throughout the country almost daily. If, therefore, a publisher asks for a particular title in the hope that it would be available as it is not mentioned in the Press Registrar's latest Report, he may have to be disappointed. Here, again, it would be advisable for every intending publisher to suggest a number of titles instead of one.

Verification of Titles of Bi-lingual Papers

Several instances have come to notice in which a publisher proposes to file a declaration in respect of a bi-lingual or multi-lingual paper and it is noticed from the records maintained by the Press Registrar that a newspaper bearing a title which is the same as or similar to the one mentioned by the intending publisher is already being published in one of the languages in which the proposed paper is to be published. In such a case the title would not be available for the new paper even if the contravention to the proviso to Section 6 is in respect of one language only and the title is available in the other language or languages.

Refusal to File Ceasing Declaration

One of the problems that occasionally confronts those responsible for the administration of the Press and Registration of Books Act, either at the Centre or in the States, is that of the recalcitrant publisher who refuses to file a ceasing declaration under Section 8 of the Act and poses a problem for the owner who, even after dispensing with his services, cannot entrust the publication of the paper to another publisher, for a declaration from a new publisher cannot be accepted until the previous publisher has filed a ceasing declaration. Although Section 15A of the Press and Registration of Books Act provides that any person who, on ceasing to be the publisher of a paper fails or refuses to file a ceasing declaration under Section 8, shall be liable to punishment which may extend to Rs. 200, difficulty arises when the publisher claims that he continues to be the publisher, while the owner's contention is that he has been removed from service. In these circumstances the rival claims can only be settled in a court of law and until that has been done Section 15A cannot be enforced.

The latest instance of this nature that came to the Press Registrar's notice was that of "Janatantra", a Gujarati daily, published from Ahmedabad. The paper was sold to a new concern. The new owner decided to continue the former printer, publisher and editor in the same capacity and he filed a fresh declaration as 'the ownership had changed'. The firm later decided to relieve him of his duties and wrote a letter to him discharging him from service. The firm also called upon him to file a ceasing declaration under Section 8 of the Press and Registration of Books Act. A new printer, publisher and editor was named and he came up to file a declaration before the Magistrate concerned. The earlier publisher protested and did not file a ceasing declaration, contending that the firm had illegally and improperly terminated his services and that the printing and publishing of the paper was his personal right and responsibility. At the time of the submission of this Report, the case was pending before the Bombay High Court.

Printer's Refusal to File Declaration

A State Government wrote to the Press Registrar that the publisher of a daily paper had filed a declaration for change of printer and a notice was served by the Magistrate concerned on the previous printer for filing a ceasing declaration under Section 8 of the Act. The printer did not file the necessary declaration and stated that the publisher owed him some amount towards printing charges and that he wanted to continue as printer until his dues were cleared. The State Government were of the view that the printer could settle his claim for printing charges in a civil court but he could not refuse to file a ceasing declaration under Section 8 of the Act. They further observed that the declaration of the new printer could not be taken without obtaining a ceasing declaration from the old printer. It could also not be held that it was the duty of the publisher to obtain a ceasing declaration from the outgoing printer. The Government enquired whether the position as set out by them was correct.

Agreeing with the above views of the State Government, the Press Registrar stated that it was for the printer, as soon as he ceased to function as such, to file a ceasing declaration as required under Section 8 of the Act and failure to comply with this provision rendered a person liable for punishment under Section 15A of the Act.

Defunct Papers—Is Ceasing Declaration Necessary?

Is a ceasing declaration by a printer/publisher under Section 8 of the Press and Registration of Books Act necessary if his paper has ceased publication and his declaration has also become void under Section 5(5) of the Act? This query was addressed to the Press Registrar by a State Government. The question related to a Hindi weekly, publication of which was stopped in 1958. The State Government directed the District Magistrate concerned to ask the printer/publisher to file a ceasing declaration under Section 8, but the publisher/printer was not traceable at his known address nor were his whereabouts known. In these circumstances it was not possible to obtain a ceasing declaration from him. Under the prevailing practice in the State, the Government had been insisting on obtaining a ceasing declaration whenever a declaration became void under Section 5(6) or 5(7) of the Press and Registration of Books Act.

and the publisher did not propose to revive the paper by filing a fresh declaration. Their legal authorities, on the other hand, were of the view that "when a declaration has become void for any reasons under Section 5, the question of filing a ceasing declaration does not arise". The State Government, therefore, asked the Press Registrar for clarification of the position and they were informed that the view expressed by their legal authorities was correct.

When a declaration has become void under Section 5(5), 5(6) or 5(7) of the Press and Registration of Books Act, a ceasing declaration under Section 8 is not necessary, irrespective of the fact whether it is proposed to revive the paper or not. In such cases when the paper is sought to be revived the declaration will be regarded as for a new paper and verification of title would be necessary. If, however, the paper has ceased publication but its declaration continues to be valid, as in the case of a monthly where a declaration would be valid until the expiry of 12 months after the publication of last issue, a ceasing declaration by the printer or publisher is necessary. In the absence of such a ceasing declaration the title of the paper will be locked up until the declaration in respect of it becomes void under Section 5(7).

Place of Filing Declarations

Under Section 5(2) of the Press and Registration of Books Act the printer and publisher of a newspaper can file a declaration in the court of a District, Presidency or Sub-Divisional Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction the newspaper is to be printed or published or such printer or publisher resides. It was, therefore, permissible for a publisher residing in Delhi to file a declaration in the court of a Delhi Magistrate even if the paper was to be printed outside Delhi. In a number of cases it was pointed out by the Magistrate concerned that if the paper was to be printed outside his jurisdiction he would have no control and would not be in a position to take action in case of infringement of the law. On this basis the Magistrate refused to authenticate declarations unless the place of printing also was within his jurisdiction.

As has been stated in the Chapter 'Amendment of the Act', it is proposed to amend Section 5 in order to provide that the declaration in respect of a paper by a publisher or printer should be filed only where the paper is published or printed. Meanwhile a Magistrate could not refuse to authenticate a declaration merely on the ground that the printing of a paper was to be done at a place outside his jurisdiction if the publisher or printer resided within his jurisdiction. It was pointed out to the Magistrate concerned that until the law was amended he should continue to accept declarations from publishers and printers residing in his area even if the paper was to be printed or published outside. On the Press Registrar's advice the declarations were accepted.

A similar question arose when a printer and publisher who resided at Ganganagar filed a declaration in the court of the Ganganagar District Magistrate while the paper was to be printed and published at Delhi. The Delhi Administration therefore inquired whether in this case it was necessary for the printer and publisher to file a declaration at Delhi. Under the law as it exists the publisher has the choice to file a declaration either at the place where he resides or where the paper is to be printed or published. The Delhi Administration, were, therefore, informed that there was no need for the printer and publisher to file a declaration at Delhi.

Supply of Copies of Declarations

A Magistrate sought clarification of the provision under Section 6 of the Act relating to inspection and supply of copies of declarations. He inquired whether the provision meant that a person had to inspect an 'old declaration' on payment of a fee of one rupee before applying for its copy on payment of an additional fee of two rupees. He also asked whether it applied to 'freshly made declarations' also and whether it was compulsory to issue only an attested copy of a declaration, on payment, or an unattested copy could be given free of cost on request from an interested person.

The Magistrate was informed that the provision referred to by him related only to originals of authenticated declarations kept in the custody of the authenticating Magistrate and the High Court of Judicature or other principal civil court of original jurisdiction for the place concerned. It provided that any person could inspect an original authenticated declaration on a payment of one rupee and obtain an attested copy of the same on a payment of two rupees. An applicant could ask for an attested copy of an authenticated declaration without wanting to inspect the original.

It was further explained that the provision prescribed the procedure relating only to issue of attested copies of authenticated declarations. The Press Registrar could offer no comments on the question of supply of unattested copies which could be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the general law on the subject.

"Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" Case

Two cases in which, in addition to other issues, the question of enforcement of the proviso to Section 6 was involved, arose during the year. The papers concerned were the "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika", Allahabad, and the "Express" group of papers. The facts of the two cases are given below.

The "Amrita Bazar Patrika", an English daily, published from Allahabad, stopped publication after its issue dated January 14, 1959. The paper was owned by the Amrita Bazar Patrika (Private) Ltd., Calcutta, and formed part of a chain which included other papers, namely, "Amrita Bazar Patrika", Calcutta, "Amrita Patrika", Allahabad, and "Jugantar", Calcutta. The rights and assets of the Allahabad publication were transferred to a newly constituted company, the Allahabad Patrika (Private) Ltd., by the original owners under an agreement and the new concern decided to start a paper called "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" as an English daily from Allahabad. The printer and publisher of the proposed paper filed a declaration under Section 5(2) of the Press and Registration of Books Act before the Additional District Magistrate, Allahabad, on January 13, 1959. Before the Magistrate had authenticated the declaration, as required under Section 6, the paper commenced publication on January 15, 1959. Meanwhile, on receiving a reference from the Magistrate, the Press Registrar had advised him that the title "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" could not be recommended for acceptance as it was similar to that of "Amrita Bazar Patrika", an English daily, published from Calcutta, and since the ownership of the two papers was different, acceptance of a declaration for "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" would contravene the provisions of the proviso to Section 6. The question then arose whether the publication of the paper was without a valid declaration and thus unauthorised.

Notices were issued on February 3, 1959, to the printer, publisher and editor of the "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" to show cause why action should not be taken against them under Section 15 of the Press and Registration of Books Act for publishing a paper without a valid declaration. In their reply they stated that the legal effectiveness of a declaration did not depend upon what was to be done by the authority before whom it was made and subscribed. Their contention was that a declaration under Section 5 became legally effective and valid the moment it was made and subscribed. They also stated that authentication by the competent authority followed as a matter of course and could be refused only in certain circumstances.

While the case was being proceeded with in the court of the City Magistrate, Allahabad, the defendants filed a petition in the Allahabad High Court in which they contended that the proviso to Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act was ultra vires of the Constitution as it was hit by Articles 14 and 19 thereof. The entire case was thereafter transferred to the High Court.

The "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika", however, ceased publication shortly after its commencement. The Allahabad Patrika (Private) Ltd. started another paper called the "Northern India Patrika" after duly completing all necessary formalities under the Press and Registration of Books Act. The title was verified and a declaration filed before the Magistrate and authenticated by him.

Later, the defendant gave an assurance that they had no intention of contravening the provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act when they started the "Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika" and also that they had no intention of reviving it. The case was thereupon allowed to be withdrawn by the High Court.

Express Group

In April 1959, the "Express" group of newspapers published from Madras were discontinued and the publications issued by the chain from Bombay and Madurai came under new ownership, and the publications issued from Delhi alone continued under the original ownership of Express Newspapers (Private) Ltd. Since the publications issued from Bombay and Madurai were continuing publications, no new declaration in respect of them was necessary and, therefore, no reference was made to the Press Registrar consequent on the change of ownership.

In the case of "Andhra Prabha", originally published from Madras, the Andhra Prabha (Private) Ltd. which took over the ownership of this paper, applied for publication of another edition of "Andhra Prabha" from Vijayawada. Since the declaration was necessitated on the change of place of publication and there was no paper bearing the same title published in Andhra State or in Telugu language, the declaration for the publication of "Andhra Prabha" from Vijayawada, was allowed by the District Magistrate. When however, an edition of the "Indian Express" was proposed to be published from Vijayawada, the question arose whether the title should be allowed. The Magistrate, who had made an enquiry from the Press Registrar, was informed that the declaration should not be authenticated unless he was satisfied that the ownership of the proposed paper at Vijayawada was the same as that of the "Indian Express" published from any other centre. The Magistrate later informed the Press Registrar that the proposed "Indian Express" from Vijayawada was to be published by the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd., which already published the "Indian Express" from Madurai and wanted a simultaneous edition from Vijayawada. Later in 1960, the "Indian Express" (Madurai) Private Ltd. was also permitted to publish another simultaneous edition of the "Indian Express" from Chittoor. At the same time, the Andhra Prabha Private Ltd., Vijayawada, were allowed to publish a simultaneous edition of "Andhra Prabha" from Chittoor.

"Hindusthan Standard"

Another case relating to verification of title which, though it related to the year 1958, was referred to in Parliament during the debate on the Press Registrar's Report, was that of the "Delhi Hindusthan Standard". Up to June 1958 the "Hindusthan Standard" was published from Delhi as a simultaneous edition of the Calcutta paper of the same name. From July that year the ownership of the Delhi paper was changed and it was re-named "Delhi Hindusthan Standard". The title was referred to the Press Registrar under the proviso to Section 6 and the Magistrate was advised to authenticate the declaration in respect of it. Exception was taken to this by some Members of Parliament and it was stated that the title should not have been allowed as the ownership of the "Delhi Hindusthan Standard" and the "Hindusthan Standard", Calcutta, was different from July 1958.

The position in this respect was explained by the Minister for Information and Broadcasting in a statement made in the Lok Sabha on December 2, 1959. The Minister stated that there was only one exception to the general practice followed in the authentication of declarations in respect of newspapers under the proviso to Section 6 and that was the case of the "Delhi Hindusthan Standard". The workers employed in the "Hindusthan Standard" published from Delhi had represented to the Registrar and the District Magistrate that in view of their agreement with the original owners concerning the rights, assets, etc., and the possibility of considerable unemployment if the paper closed down, and also because the same workers were carrying on the paper, the title "Delhi Hindusthan Standard" might be permitted. This was allowed, therefore, as a special case. However, it was later felt that the implications of any further permission of this sort being many, such exceptions should not be recommended in future.

Titles Conflicting with Names of Foreign Papers

A few cases were brought to the notice of the Press Registrar in which the publishers of some foreign newspapers had objected to the adoption of titles which were the same as those of their publications and had suggested that the Indian publishers should be called upon to change the titles of their papers. It may be observed that the Press Registrar cannot intervene in such cases. The Press and Registration of Books Act extends only over India and while examining the availability of titles the Press Registrar has to take into account only those papers that are published in India.

CHAPTER IV

REGISTER OF NEWSPAPERS

SCOPE OF PRESS REGISTRAR'S STUDY

Suggestions were made in the Lok Sabha, during the debate on the Press Registrar's Annual Reports for 1957 and 1958, that the Press Registrar should collect more information relating to the Press in the country than was given by him in his Reports. In particular, it was stated, the Press Registrar's Report should contain information pertaining to the organisational side of the newspaper industry. In this connection the Government's attention was drawn to the Press Commission's recommendations where a wider scope for the collection of statistics and data by the Press Registrar was suggested, with special emphasis on the organisational side of newspapers. It was also suggested by some members that the Report should give a general review of what was happening in the Press in the country—"the under-currents in the newspaper world".

As was stated by the Minister of Information and Broadcasting in his reply to the debate, the Press Registrar has only to collect data and statistics regarding the Press and the study of these figures made by him should speak for itself. It was not for him to draw conclusions, beyond indicating certain trends as revealed by the data collected by him. Nor could he undertake the task of giving a general review of what was happening in the newspaper world, for in doing so he would be expressing an opinion. Even in the matter of collection of data and statistics the scope of the Press Registrar's inquiry is circumscribed by the provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act. Within this limitation, therefore, the possibility of implementing the suggestions made by Members of Parliament was examined.

Prescribed Particulars

Besides the declarations which give some basic information about newspapers, the Press Registrar has mainly to depend on the Annual Statements furnished by newspapers as the source of his information. The Annual Statement contains such of the particulars of newspapers as are referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 19B. The form prescribed for the purpose carries all the particulars mentioned in Section 19B. In addition, Section 19E of the Press and Registration of Books Act lays down that "the publisher of every newspaper shall furnish to the Press Registrar such returns, statistics and other information with respect to any of the particulars referred to in sub-section (2) of Section 19B as the Press Registrar may from time to time require."

The information that the Press Registrar can call for under Section 19E is also, therefore, related to the provisions of Section 19B, which lays down:

- (1) The Press Registrar shall maintain in the prescribed manner a Register of Newspapers.
- (2) The Register shall, as far as may be practicable, contain the following particulars about every newspaper published in India, namely:
 - (a) the title of the newspaper;

- (b) the language in which the newspaper is published;
- (c) periodicity of the publication of the newspaper;
- (d) the name of the editor, printer and publisher of the newspaper;
- (e) the place of printing and publication;
- (f) the average number of pages per week;
- (g) the number of days of publication in the year;
- (h) the average number of copies printed, the average number of copies sold to the public and the average number of copies distributed free to the public, the average being calculated with reference to such period as may be prescribed;
- (i) retail selling price per copy;
- (j) the names and addresses of the owners of the newspaper and such other particulars relating to ownership as may be prescribed;
- (k) any other particulars which may be prescribed.

In addition to the items already prescribed in the above Section, the Press Registrar can, under clause (k), call for "any other particulars which may be prescribed". In extending the scope of the data collected by the Press Registrar it was, therefore, necessary that any additional information he had to obtain should be either related to the items specified in clauses (a) to (j) of sub-section (2) of Section 19B or it should be prescribed under clause (k).

In order to expand the scope of information collected by the Press Registrar, it was, therefore, necessary that any additional particulars which may be called must be prescribed under clause (k) of Section 19B (2), and these particulars, along with those already prescribed, must also be entered in the Register of Newspapers maintained by the Press Registrar. It was considered that the Register of Newspapers already contained fairly detailed particulars, and any addition to them in the Register may not be practicable. Another consideration was whether additional particulars, for instance, relating to the personnel employed, equipment, revenue and expenditure, etc. should be allowed to be entered in the Register and, as already provided, made available to public on application. It might be advisable that such details about a newspaper establishment as mentioned above should be treated as confidential and utilised only for compiling general statistics. If this consideration prevailed, it will not only be necessary to prescribe additional particulars under clause (k) of Section 19B (2), but also to provide that they need not be entered in the Register of Newspapers. Some additional information can, however, be collected with respect to any of the particulars already prescribed by the Act. One of the particulars already prescribed refers to the owners of newspaper and such other particulars relating to ownership as may be prescribed. It is proposed, in the first instance, to undertake a study of the capital invested in the newspaper industry. Steps have already been taken to frame a questionnaire on this subject in consultation with the Company Law Administration. The questionnaire would cover all aspects of capital invested in the industry and, it is proposed, to utilise this information for purposes of statistics relating to capital employed, the breakdown of the capital employed into various types of assets, and to the source of finance.

Present Study

For the present, the Press Registrar's study is confined to the data collected by him under the existing provisions of the Press and Registration of Books Act. No additional particulars have so far been prescribed by Government either for inclusion in the Register of Newspapers or for purposes of general study. Latest information relating to particulars already prescribed is supplied to the Press Registrar by publishers in the Annual Statement relating to each calendar year, which has to be submitted by them on or before the last day of February in the succeeding year.

In each of his Annual Reports published so far the Press Registrar has pointed out that the number of Annual Statements received each year is far short of the number of papers included in the Register of Newspapers maintained by him. Although the position has been improving in successive years and an increasing number of publishers have sent in Annual Statements, only now it can be said that more or less complete information is available in respect of 1958 and 1959 as publishers of more than 5,000 newspapers have responded to the Press Registrar's demand for annual returns. There are, however, still a considerable number of publishers who have failed to submit the Annual Statement but the discrepancy which may be noticed in the number of papers registered at the end of 1958 and 1959 and the number of annual returns actually received in respect of these two years is largely due to the fact that every year 300 to 400 papers cease publication and more than 1,000 new papers come into existence and it is their publishers who generally fail to submit any return. In addition, there are what are strictly speaking not newspapers which do not always conform to the Rules. For the year 1959, for instance, out of 2,419 papers in respect of which Annual Statements were not received, 467 were, strictly speaking, not newspapers, 623 were new publications and some more may have ceased publication towards the end of the year. It is, therefore, assumed that information given in this Report covers practically all continuing newspapers.

The following table shows the number of papers on the Press Registrar's record, the number of Annual Statements received by the due date, the number of Annual Statements received after the submission of the Report for the year for which Annual Statements were called for and the percentage of the Annual Statements received to the total number of papers:

Receipt of Annual Statements

Year	Total number of newspapers on Press Registrar's record	Total Annual Statements received before com- pilation of Report		Annual State- ments received after compila- tion of Report		Defaulting Newspapers
		Number	Percent- age of total	Number	Percent- age of total	Number	Percent- age of total
1957	5,932	3,059	51·6	1,058	17·8	1,815	30·6
1958	6,918	4,199	60·7	1,093	15·8	1,626	23·5
1959	7,651	5,232	68·4

Action against Publishers

In the 1958 Report it was stated that no action had been taken against publishers till then because, it was felt, that the Press and Registration of Books Act, as far as it related to newspapers, being a new piece of legislation its provisions were perhaps not fully known to publishers and, therefore, it was not advisable to enforce its penal clauses strictly. By 1959, however, the Act had been in force for nearly three years and it was, therefore, made clear that in future action would be taken against publishers who defaulted in the submission of Annual Statements to the Press Registrar.

This subject was also brought up by certain Members during the debate on the Press Registrar's Reports for 1957 and 1958 in the Lok Sabha and it was pointed out that the Press Registrar should not have acted on the presumption that the lapses on the part of the publishers were due to ignorance of law. Even if it was ignorance of law, it should not have been allowed to be used as an excuse. The Press Registrar should have invoked the penal clauses of the Act against such publishers. In his reply to the debate, the Minister for Information and Broadcasting explained the position thus:

".....It is no doubt true that there are penal provisions in the Act. But we have been reluctant to invoke the penal provisions in the beginning, because we wanted this work to be done effectively and without too much of controversy.

For example, for some time there was a large number of mofussil newspapers whose publishers probably were not even aware that a Registrar had been appointed. The news percolated to them slowly. They had to be reminded to send details as to what information they had to give and slowly it has come to them. Now an overwhelming majority give information. I might, however, inform hon. Members that now we are going to take up the question of invoking the penal clauses and see that those who, for two years or more, have refused to give information are proceeded against. But I would request hon. Members that in such a matter let us not try to be drastic from the very beginning. We thought, let us set the wheels in motion effectively and let us organise the work on a sound basis and then only proceed step by step. Now we will take action against papers which are not following the provisions of the Act thoroughly."

Immediately after the submission of the Report for 1958, the Press Registrar drew up district-wise lists of publishers who had failed to submit the Annual Statements. These lists were forwarded in August-September, 1959 to District Magistrates in whose jurisdiction the defaulting publishers resided with the advice that, in the first instance, notices may be issued to the publishers to show cause why action should not be taken against them under Section 19K of the Press and Registration of Books Act which provides the penalty of a fine, extending up to Rs. 500, for not submitting the prescribed returns to the Press Registrar. These "show cause" notices were issued to 1,927 publishers. Out of these 989 either sent in the Annual Statements or informed the Press Registrar that their papers had ceased publication. In the case of others who had failed to give any satisfactory explanation for their lapse in not sending the Annual Statements, the Magistrates were advised to launch prosecution against them. Information regarding the result of the prosecutions was still awaited from the Magistrates at the time of submitting this Report. Of the papers against which action was taken 404 were, strictly speaking, not newspapers and belonged to the category of market reports, school magazines, house journals, etc.

Annual Statements

For the year 1959 the number of Annual Statements received was 5232. Out of these 4584 were received by February 29, 1960, and the remaining 648 by March 31. Since there were 7,651 papers known to be in existence on December 31, 1959, this left out 2,419 papers which did not submit the Annual Statement. An analysis of the lists of papers for which Annual Statements have not been received for the year 1959 reveals that 101 of them were dailies, 671 weeklies and 1,647 papers of other periodicities. Out of these 467 were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Past experience has shown that publishers continue to send Annual Statements even after the Press Registrar's Report has been submitted to Government on April 30. These statements cannot be taken into account in the Report for the year to which the returns relate. The result is that the study of circulation, ownership, etc. remains incomplete. The Annual Statements received after the compilation of the Report can only be utilised for revising the data for a particular year in the Report for the next year but at that stage, beyond giving the revised figures, there is no occasion for an exhaustive study of trends in circulation and ownership and of other aspects of the Press.

Once again, therefore, it has to be emphasised that publishers should not only send in their Annual Statements every year but send them by the due date in order to enable the Press Registrar to give a full picture of the Press in the country and of the developments during a particular year. As is evident from the notice taken of the Press Registrar's Reports in the past three years, there is considerable interest in the country in general, and in the newspaper industry in particular, in the analysis of the various data given by the Press Registrar in his Reports but this analysis can be much more complete and useful if the publishers lend their full cooperation to him by supplying him the necessary statistics in time. While the Press Registrar expects such cooperation to be forthcoming readily and voluntarily, he will have to resort to penal action if publishers continue to ignore their statutory obligations. As was done last year, it is proposed again to send out lists of defaulting publishers, in respect of the year 1959, to District Magistrates for taking action under Section 19K of the Press and Registration of Books Act.

Certificates Issued

By March 31, 1960, the Press Registrar had issued 4,110 Certificates of Registration to various newspapers and entries had been made in the Register of Newspapers in respect of 4,615 papers. As has been explained above, Certificates of Registration are issued only after a paper has started publication, has delivered a copy of its first issue to the Press Registrar and the necessary particulars relating to it have been supplied. These particulars are checked, entries made in the Register and a Registration Number allotted to the paper. In the case of existing papers too the same procedure is followed.

Every year, however, a large number of papers cease publication and their registration has to be cancelled. At the same time over 1,000 newspapers come into existence and entries in respect of them have to be made in the Register of Newspapers. In addition, entries already made in respect of existing newspapers have to be brought up-to-date and new certificates issued to them incorporating their latest particulars. Entries of particulars regarding newspapers in the Register of Newspapers as well as issue of certificates is therefore a continuous process and the endeavour is to maintain the Register up-to-date. It may, however, take some time before entries in respect of all newspapers are made in the Register and Certificates of Registration issued to them. But whenever a publisher requires a Certificate of Registration and it is not possible to issue one immediately, a Registration Number is allotted to the paper pending the issue of a certificate. This procedure has particularly been helpful to publishers ever since the postal authorities decided to grant a postal concession, at a special rate, to all those periodicals which do not conform to the definition of newspapers as given in the Indian Post Office Act but which are registered with the Press Registrar. The issue of a Registration Number to them helps them to obtain the postal concession without delay.

Extracts from the Register

Under Section 19H of the Press and Registration of Books Act, the Press Registrar has to supply extracts from the Register of Newspapers to anyone asking for them on payment of the prescribed fee of Rs. 5 per extract. Extracts from the Register are also made available to State Governments and to various Ministries and Departments of the Government of India which may need the latest information about any newspaper.

In addition to supplying extracts from the Register of Newspapers to members of the public and non-official organisations, information regarding the circulation and standing of various papers is supplied to certain departments of the Government of India and State Governments who wish to consider certain newspapers for issue of government advertisements. Similar information is also made available to the Press Information Bureau of the Government of India to help them in deciding the accreditation of correspondents of certain papers. One High Court, in order to decide whether a particular paper should be allowed court advertisement, addressed a query to the Press Registrar and the facts available with the Press Registrar regarding the paper were supplied to the High Court.

It may be stated here that requests for extracts from the Register frequently include an enquiry regarding the political affiliations of a paper or its tone and policy. The Press Registrar is not in a position to supply this information as the Register of Newspapers only contain factual information such as periodicity, language of the paper, its average circulation in a particular year, details of ownership, etc.

The Press Registrar does not collect any information relating to the tone and policy of newspapers, or their political affiliations.

Regularity of Publication

The Press Registrar and the Regional Offices of the Press Information Bureau, to whom copies of papers published in regional languages and meant for the Press Registrar have to be delivered, keep a day to day record of the issues received by them. At the end of each month, reminders are issued to publishers for issues which may not have been received. On the basis of the receipt of issues of newspapers, a record is kept of the regularity or otherwise of publication of every newspaper. If any publisher of a newspaper neglects to deliver a copy of the same to the Press Registrar, he is, on a complaint made by the Press Registrar, punishable under Section 16B of the Act by fine which may extend to Rs. 50 for every default. It is proposed that, in future, if any newspaper persistently neglects or refuses to supply issues of its publication, penal action would be taken against that publisher.

It is often noticed that publishers of newspapers in their Annual Statements claim regularity of publication which is not borne out by the records maintained in the office of the Press Registrar about the actual receipt of their publications. It is possible that a paper may have published as many issues as are mentioned in the Annual Statement, but unless copies of issues are received by the Press Registrar, regularity of publication will not be reflected in his records.

During 1959 copies of 5,075 newspapers (66·3 per cent.) out of the total number of 7,651 newspapers on the Press Registrar's record were being received regularly. There were 756 (9·9 per cent.) papers copies of which were received irregularly and 1,820 (23·8 per cent.) papers of which no copies were received. It may be mentioned here that the regularity of papers is calculated in accordance with the principle laid down in the Press and Registration of Books Act. Under Section 5(6) of that Act it is provided that any newspaper published, at an interval of a fortnight or less should publish at least half the number of issues that should be brought out according to its declared periodicity in any period of three months. For papers published at longer intervals the period between any two issues must not exceed 12 months.

In the table below are given, periodicity-wise, the number of papers on the Press Registrar's record, the number of papers received regularly, the number of papers received irregularly and the number of papers of which no copies were received during 1959 by the Press Registrar. Out of the papers of which copies were being received regularly 4,157 (54·4 per cent.) belonged to A category* and 918 (12·00 per cent.) to B category. Out of the irregular papers 629 (8·1 per cent.) were A category papers and 127 (1·7 per cent.) belonged to B category. Amongst the papers of which copies were not being received 1,310 (17·2 per cent.) belonged to A category.

A comparison with the position in the year 1958 shows that the percentage of regular papers increased during 1959 from 56 per cent.

*B category includes publications that are, strictly speaking, not newspapers such as market reports, school magazines, etc. The rest are in A category.

to 66·3 per cent. The percentage of irregular papers declined from 28 per cent. to 9·9 per cent. and the percentage of papers of which no copies were being received increased from 16 to 23·8 per cent. This increase was perhaps due to the fact that not all the 1,302 new papers that started publication during 1959 had started sending copies.

Of 420 dailies of A category known to be in existence, 28 were supplied irregularly while no copies of 40 were delivered. Most of the dailies whose copies were either not supplied or sent irregularly to the Press Registrar appeared from small towns and had circulation ranging from about 250 to 2,000. Only two dailies having a circulation of above 5,000 were received irregularly; of these one was in Urdu, having a circulation above 10,000.

Of 1,766 A and 171 B category weeklies on record, 224 A category papers and 21 B category papers were received irregularly, while no copies of 290 A category papers and 37 B category papers were received. Of the irregular weeklies, 149 dealt with news and current affairs. The largest number of irregular A category monthlies belonged to the literary and cultural group followed by papers dealing with religion and philosophy, news and current affairs and social welfare.

CHAPTER V

STATISTICS OF NEWSPAPERS

There were 7,651 newspapers and periodicals published in the country on December 31, 1959, as against 6,918 in 1958. The number of newspapers on the Press Registrar's record has been progressively increasing from year to year. The number of newspapers published in 1957 stood at 5,932 and the increase in two years was nearly 29 per cent.

During 1959, the number of new newspapers and periodicals which started publication was 1,302. The number of newspapers which ceased publication was only 327, showing a net increase of 975 newspapers. At the same time, as a result of information received from State authorities and from the publishers direct, 470 other papers were added to the Press Registrar's record. These newspapers were already in existence but had not either come to the Press Registrar's notice or had failed to furnish information about themselves. Similarly, information regarding the closure of 712 papers was received by the Press Registrar during 1959 although they had ceased publication earlier. In most of these cases the information came from publishers in reply to "show cause" notices issued to them for non-submission of the Annual Statements in respect of 1958. Taking all these additions and deletions into account, the increase in the total number of newspapers and periodicals at the end of 1959 was 733.

Notable among those which ceased publication during 1959 were the Express group of papers published from Madras; the "Bombay Chronicle", which had been in existence since 1913 and its evening counterpart, the "Bombay Sentinel", which was established in 1933; and the simultaneous edition of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" published from Allahabad and its Hindi counterpart, "The Amrita Patrika" also published from Allahabad. With the exception of the Tamil daily, "Dinamani", all the publications of the "Express" group which closed down in Madras started publication from Vijayawada under a new ownership. The Telugu daily, "Andhra Prabha", and the "Andhra Prabha Illustrated Weekly" were taken over by the Andhra Prabha Private Ltd., and the "Indian Express" and "Sunday Standard" as multiple editions of the "Indian Express" owned by Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd. appeared from Vijayawada (Andhra Pradesh). Later, early in 1960, multiple editions of the "Andhra Prabha" (owned by Andhra Prabha Private Ltd.), "Dinamani", the "Indian Express" and the "Sunday Standard" [owned by Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd.] were started from Chittoor (also in Andhra Pradesh) by the respective owners.

To replace the "Amrita Bazar Patrika", Allahabad, a new company with the active support of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika", Calcutta, started publication of an English daily entitled "The Northern India Patrika" from Allahabad. No effort was, however, made by them to revive the Hindi daily, "Amrita Patrika". Some of the journalists previously employed in "Amrita Patrika", however, formed a co-operative and after considerable initial difficulties established a Hindi daily entitled "Prayag Patrika" in March 1960.

No new publication either by the original owners or by a new company sponsored by the original owners replaced the "Bombay Chronicle" and the "Bombay Sentinel".

Among other dailies which ceased publication during 1959 were the "Punjabi Sher" and "Khalsa Sewak" (both in Punjabi language from Punjab), "Rashtvani" (Hindi daily from Bihar), and "Samuthayam" (Tamil daily from Madras). There were 21 other dailies which had ceased publication earlier but intimation about their closure was received by the Press Registrar during 1959. These were:

WEST BENGAL

1. Calcutta Times (Hindi).
2. Angara (Urdu).
3. Bharat Patrika (Bi-lingual).

MYSORE

1. Singari (Kannada).
2. Atom Bomb (Kannada).
3. Mysore Sahakara Patrika (Kannada).
4. Navayug (Kannada).
5. Praarabdha (Kannada).
6. Janamitra (Kannada).
7. Jyoti (Kannada).

ANDHRA PRADESH

1. Morning News (English).
2. Sudarshan (Marathi).
3. Hangama (Urdu).
4. Telangana (Urdu).

KERALA

1. Gomathi (Bi-lingual).

MADHYA PRADESH

1. Sanjaya (Hindi).

BOMBAY

1. Sudarashan (Marathi).

PUNJAB

1. Azad Bharat (Urdu).
2. Naujawan Mazdoor (Urdu).
3. Punjab Sandesh (Urdu).
4. Sandesh (Urdu).

There were 44 dailies among the 1,302 new publications which came into existence during 1959. Among the new dailies are included the simultaneous editions from Chittoor (Andhra Pradesh) of the "Indian Express" (English) and "Dinamani" (Tamil), owned by the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd. and "Andhra Prabha" (Telugu), owned by the Andhra Prabha (Private) Ltd., Vijayawada. Although these papers commenced publication in early 1960, declarations in respect of them were filed during 1959. Among other new dailies the largest number which commenced publication during 1959 was in Hindi—seven in Madhya Pradesh, five in Uttar Pradesh, one in Rajasthan and one in Bombay. These were:

MADHYA PRADESH

1. Nai Duniya from Raipur.
2. Nai Duniya from Jabalpur.

Already published from Indore. Started simultaneous publication from these two centres also.

3. Mazdoor from Khandwa.
4. Neemuch Samachar from Neemuch.
5. Shajapur Samachar, from Shajapur.
6. Nava Bharat from Raipur

.. Already published from Jabalpur, Bhopal and Nagpur. Started simultaneous publication from Raipur also.

7. Madhya Pradesh from Katni.

UTTAR PRADESH

1. Tankar from Kanpur.
2. Satya Marg from Kanpur.
3. Samachar from Varanasi.
4. Purbiya from Varanasi.
5. Ram Rajya from Kanpur.

RAJASTHAN

1. Jai Bhoomi from Jaipur.

BOMBAY

1. Deshmukh from Bombay.

The next largest number of new dailies commenced publication in Malayalam language in Kerala State. These were: "Janamunnani" (Cannanore), "Janavani" (Palghat), "Janakeralam" (Kottayam), "Keraladhvani" (Kottayam), "Kerala Bhoomi" (Alleppy) and "Viswakeralam" (Palayam). In Madhya Pradesh the first English daily—the "Madhya Pradesh Herald"—started publication from Bhopal. Three dailies were added to the Kannada Press, namely: "Dharam Veera" (Hubli), "Samyukta Karnataka" (Bangalore) (Simultaneous edition of the Hubli publication) and "Vishva Vani" (Hubli). In Tamil, two dailies—"Malai Murasu" (Madras) and "Thina Seethi" (Madras)—came into existence in Madras State besides "Bharatham", a Tamil bi-weekly. A Gujarati daily, "Savdhan" (Rajkot), and two Marathi dailies, "Ajintha" (Aurangabad) and "Vishal Maharashtra" (Bombay), were established in Bombay State. In Punjab, the second English daily "Punjab Standard" (Gurgaon) started publication, and there was an addition of an Urdu daily "Rohjan", also published from Punjab. From Delhi, "Khalsa Sewak" in Punjabi and "Jai Bharat", an Urdu daily, commenced publication. Two Urdu dailies, "League" and "Iqdam-e-Jadid", were established in Hyderabad (Andhra Pradesh) adding to the eight Urdu dailies already published from that State. An Urdu daily, "Final Mubarak", started from Bombay, and another Urdu daily, "Elan", started publication from Mysore. There are already eight Urdu dailies published from Bombay State and three from Mysore.

Besides the 44 dailies which started publication during 1959, five dailies which came to our notice had in fact commenced publication earlier, but information about them was not available when the last Report was submitted. These included three Hindi dailies from Madhya Pradesh, namely, "Janaghosh", "Dainik Bhaskar" and "Dainik Hindi Swarajyya", and two dailies from Andhra Pradesh, namely, "Evening News of Andhra Pradesh" published in English and "Hamdam" in Urdu.

New Periodicals

Among the 1,302 new publications which started during 1959 there were 1,252 periodicals, including 207 college magazines and market reports. Similarly, among the 327 newspapers which ceased publication during 1959, there were 310 periodicals including 76 school and college magazines and market reports.

Among the periodicals which started in 1959, an English fortnightly, "Hamari Awaz", was the first paper to be started from the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

According to languages the largest number of new papers which started during 1959 were those published in Hindi. Next to Hindi, which claimed 278 new publications, the number of publications in English was 238. Among the new dailies were 14 in Hindi and six in English. Six of the new dailies published in 1959 were market reports or commercial bulletins. The number of papers that closed down was also the highest in Hindi (80). The next highest was of those in English (61). Out of the 327 publications which ceased publication, 17 were dailies—four in English, five in Hindi, five in other languages and three that were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Papers Brought on Record

Among 470 newspapers which were already in existence, 11 were included in the Press Registrar's records in 1959, 18 were market reports, 47 school and college magazines, 15 publicity journals and house organs, four serialised fiction, three on astrology and 26 belonging to the category of miscellaneous papers.

Of the 712 newspapers which ceased earlier but whose cessation came to our notice in 1959, five were market reports and bulletins, 35 school and college magazines, 11 publicity journals and house organs, five on astrology, two serialised fiction and 23 belonging to the category of miscellaneous journals.

State-wise the highest number of papers were published in Bombay (1,685), with West Bengal (1,063) and Uttar Pradesh (915) coming next. Although Bombay had the highest number of dailies also (142), the next largest number of dailies were published from Uttar Pradesh (53), Madhya Pradesh taking the third place with 46. Out of the dailies published from Bombay 42 were, strictly speaking, not newspapers. They were either market reports or commercial bulletins. Two dailies from Uttar Pradesh and one from Madhya Pradesh belonged to the same category.

English continued to have the largest number of papers (1,555), Hindi coming next with 1,439. Hindi, however, claimed the largest share of dailies (114). The number of dailies in English was 71, of which 24 were market reports or commercial bulletins.

A detailed study of the statistics of newspapers of different languages and periodicities in each State has been given in the following pages

Pattern of Study

The study this year has been done on a modified pattern suggested by UNESCO for compilation of data about newspapers in all countries. This is expected to give a clearer picture of the Press, particularly of the daily Press. For this purpose all newspapers have been broadly divided into two categories, namely, General Interest Newspapers and Periodicals.

According to the definition laid down by UNESCO, a "General Interest Newspaper" is any periodical publication, put on sale to the general public, which serves as an initial source of written news of current events in the fields of public affairs, politics, Government etc. The term 'initial source' is used in order to exclude periodicals such as weekly news magazines whose function is to select, summarise or comment on events which have been already reported in newspapers.

The above definition thus covers all general interest dailies and those non-daily publications (such as Sunday newspapers) which resemble dailies in that they give principal attention to events within the 24 hours preceding the time of going to press. The definition also covers non-daily periodical publications in the General Interest field whose news coverage extends over a longer period of time (such as bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies) but which, either because they are local or because have no competitors, serve as an initial source of news for their readers. Sunday newspapers which have been included as non-dailies are those that have a separate legal status and are distinguishable as separate newspapers. Sunday editions regularly produced by a newspaper, however, are not treated as separate newspapers and are not included in non-dailies.

Those dailies and non-dailies which, strictly speaking, are not newspapers, have also been placed under General Interest Newspapers but classed separately. To this category belongs market reports, commercial bulletins, weather reports etc.

Definition of Periodical

A 'periodical' other than a General Interest newspaper, according to the UNESCO definition, is a publication which appears under the same title at regular intervals but more than once a year and whose contents vary widely, ranging from information of a general nature to trade, technical and professional subjects.

The UNESCO definition covers all periodicals published weekly or at longer intervals except annuals. For the purpose of study in this Report, however, annuals have been included but data relating to them have been given separately.

A and B Categories

Apart from the pattern of study suggested by UNESCO, statistics of newspapers have also been analysed separately for those publications which, strictly speaking, are not newspapers. In the Report for 1958 it was mentioned that there were certain categories of publications which were not newspapers in the commonly understood sense. The following classes of publications which, for the purposes of this study has been called B category, have been included in this category. The others have been called A category papers:—

- (i) Market bulletins and commercial circulars.
- (ii) Magazines of educational institutions (school, college etc.).
- (iii) House magazines and publicity journals issued by commercial bodies.
- (iv) Serialised fiction.
- (v) Astrology.
- (vi) Miscellaneous, including racing calendars, price lists, law reports, crossword bulletins, advertisement bulletins, etc.

Collection of Statistics

The collection of statistics of newspapers by the Press Registrar is a continuing process. Information keeps on coming about papers that commence or cease publication, papers that were in existence but had not come to the Press Registrar's notice, or papers that had ceased publication but their cessation had not been reported. In the case of papers that commence publication there is a regular procedure by which information about them is received by the Press Registrar. As soon as an authenticated copy of a declaration filed in respect of a new paper is received by the Press Registrar from the Magistrate concerned, the publisher is asked to send in the Statement of Facts and a copy of its first issue. As soon as these are received, the paper is taken on the Press Registrar's record. Even here, however, there is sometimes delay on the part of the publisher in supplying the necessary particulars in the Statement of Facts, and the paper may not actually be registered during the year in which it commences publication. In the case of papers that cease publication the position is a little more difficult. Since there is no obligation on the part of a publisher to inform the Press Registrar when he stops publication of his paper, information relating to the papers that cease publication during a particular year generally remains incomplete. Such information comes to the Press Registrar through various channels and is often received long after a paper has actually closed down. It is, therefore, possible that the number of papers that ceased publication during a year may be higher than is mentioned in the Press Registrar's Report for that year. In this Report, however, the number of papers shown to have ceased publication during 1959, or earlier, is expected to be very near the correct figure. After the submission of the Annual Report for 1958 notices were served, through District Magistrates, on all those publishers who had failed to submit Annual Statements to show cause why action should not be taken against them for not complying with the provisions of the law. In response to these notices, a number of publishers intimated that their papers had ceased publication. Information was thus received not only about papers that closed down in 1959 but also about those that had stopped publication earlier.

There are also those papers which, though they have been in existence for sometime, are not borne on the Press Registrar's record as information about them has not been furnished to him. Information about such papers is received by the Press Registrar sometime from the publisher himself. Some of them come to notice when they apply for newsprint or ask for some other facility. They are thus taken into account in the statistics for the year in which their existence comes to be known.

Taking all these factors into consideration the final position, given in the Press Registrar's Reports, is as it existed on the last day of the year under review.

Analysis of Statistics

On December 31, 1959, there were 7,651 newspapers published throughout the country as against 6,918 at the end of December 1958. The total number of General Interest newspapers was 547, which included 420 dailies and 36 non-dailies of A category and 91 dailies and non-dailies (published at intervals of less than a week) which belonged to B category papers such as market reports, weather bulletins, etc. The number of periodicals was 7,104.

Of the 7,104 periodicals, 1,464 belonged to B category, including 150 market reports, 615 school and college magazines and 136 house organs. Twenty-seven were journals dealing with astrology, 90 were serialised fiction and 461 belonged to the "Miscellaneous" group consisting of racing calendars, time tables, price lists etc.

New Publications

Among the 1,302 papers that commenced publication during the year 202 belonged to B category. Of these 40 were market reports and bulletins, 67 school or college magazines, 27 publicity journals and house organs, 18 serialised fiction, three astrology and 52 miscellaneous journals.

Among the new papers the largest number (298) was in Bombay. Uttar Pradesh came next with 178. Delhi and West Bengal had 148 each, followed by Madras (118) and Punjab (105). In other States the distribution of new papers was as follows: Andhra Pradesh—64; Assam—13; Bihar—20; Kerala—56; Madhya Pradesh—54; Mysore—31; Orissa—23; Rajasthan—42. The 202 B category papers were distributed as follows: Uttar Pradesh—42; Bombay—35; West Bengal—21; Delhi—37; Madras—15; Punjab—20; Andhra Pradesh—8; Kerala—8; Madhya Pradesh—6; Mysore—1; Orissa—6; Rajasthan—3.

Only one new paper was started from Tripura, two from Manipur and 13 from Assam. During the year the first newspaper to be issued from the Andaman and Nicobar Islands started publication.

Language-wise, the highest number of new newspapers (278) was claimed by Hindi, followed by English (238), Urdu (156), Gujarati (85), Bengali (77), and Tamil (69). There were two new publications in Assamese and one in Sanskrit. Among the new papers there were 141 bilingual publications.

Taking them periodicity-wise, the largest number of new papers (498) were monthlies, including 65 belonging to B category. The next highest number was that of weeklies (330).

Taking language and periodicity together the highest number (124) was that of Hindi monthlies, which included 22 B category publications. This was followed by Hindi weeklies (89), including 10 in the second category. English monthlies (78), including nine in the second category. Urdu weeklies (71), English quarterlies and half-yearlies (67) including twelve in the second category and Gujarati monthlies (54), including five in the second category.

Of the 44 new dailies of A category, 33 morning and 11 evening, 14 were in Hindi, six in Malayalam and Urdu, five in English, three each in Telugu, Tamil and Kannada, two in Marathi and one each in Gujarati and Punjabi. Besides these, six dailies belonging to B category started publication during the year.

Table I shows the language and periodicity-wise break-up of newspapers which commenced publication during 1959.

Papers that Ceased Publication

Out of the 327 papers that closed down during the year under review 76 were of B category and comprised 13 market reports and bulletins, 25 school or college magazines, 12 publicity journals or house magazines, 2 serialised fiction, one astrology and 23 belonging to the miscellaneous category.

Their State-wise distribution was as follows: A category: Andhra Pradesh—7; Assam—2; Bihar—2; Bombay—52; Kerala—3; Madhya Pradesh—3; Madras—24; Mysore—4; Punjab—38; Rajasthan—5; Uttar Pradesh—57; West Bengal—19; and Delhi—35.

B category: Bihar—3; Bombay—17; Madhya Pradesh—1; Madras—1; Mysore—1; Punjab—7; Rajasthan—2; Uttar Pradesh—24; West Bengal—4; and Delhi—16.

Cessations were the highest in Hindi (80) followed by English (61) and Urdu (53). Of the 14 dailies which ceased publication, 12 morning and two evening dailies, five were in Hindi, four in English, two each in Punjabi and Tamil and one in Telugu.

The distribution of the ceased papers in different languages was as follows:

A category: English—43; Hindi—58; Bengali—11; Gujarati—17; Kannada—3; Malayalam—1; Marathi—8; Punjabi—11; Tamil—12; Telugu—8; Urdu—50; Bi-lingual—21; Multi-lingual—4; Other languages—4.

B category: English—18; Hindi—22; Bengali—1; Gujarati—4; Marathi—1; Urdu—3; Bi-lingual—17; Multi-lingual—10.

Table II shows the language and periodicity-wise distribution of newspapers which ceased publication in 1959:

Bombay State. In Punjab, the second English daily "Punjab Standard" (Gurgaon) started publication, and there was an addition of an Urdu daily "Rohjan", also published from Punjab. From Delhi, "Khalsa Sewak" in Punjabi and "Jai Bharat", an Urdu daily, commenced publication. Two Urdu dailies, "League" and "Iqdam-e-Jadid", were established in Hyderabad (Andhra Pradesh) adding to the eight Urdu dailies already published from that State. An Urdu daily, "Final Mubarak", started from Bombay, and another Urdu daily, "Elan", started publication from Mysore. There are already eight Urdu dailies published from Bombay State and three from Mysore.

Besides the 44 dailies which started publication during 1959, five dailies which came to our notice had in fact commenced publication earlier, but information about them was not available when the last Report was submitted. These included three Hindi dailies from Madhya Pradesh, namely, "Janaghosh", "Dainik Bhaskar" and "Dainik Hindi Swarajya", and two dailies from Andhra Pradesh, namely, "Evening News of Andhra Pradesh" published in English and "Hamdam" in Urdu.

New Periodicals

Among the 1,302 new publications which started during 1959 there were 1,252 periodicals, including 207 college magazines and market reports. Similarly, among the 327 newspapers which ceased publication during 1959, there were 310 periodicals including 76 school and college magazines and market reports.

Among the periodicals which started in 1959, an English fortnightly, "Hamari Awaz", was the first paper to be started from the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

According to languages the largest number of new papers which started during 1959 were those published in Hindi. Next to Hindi, which claimed 278 new publications, the number of publications in English was 238. Among the new dailies were 14 in Hindi and six in English. Six of the new dailies published in 1959 were market reports or commercial bulletins. The number of papers that closed down was also the highest in Hindi (80). The next highest was of those in English (61). Out of the 327 publications which ceased publication, 17 were dailies—four in English, five in Hindi, five in other languages and three that were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Papers Brought on Record

Among 470 newspapers which were already in existence, 411 were included in the Press Registrar's records in 1959, 18 were market reports, 47 school and college magazines, 15 publicity journals and house organs, four serialised fiction, three on astrology and 26 belonging to the category of miscellaneous papers.

Of the 712 newspapers which ceased earlier but whose cessation came to our notice in 1959, five were market reports and bulletins, 35 school and college magazines, 11 publicity journals and house organs, five on astrology, two serialised fiction and 23 belonging to the category of miscellaneous journals.

State-wise the highest number of papers were published in Bombay (1,685), with West Bengal (1,063) and Uttar Pradesh (915) coming next. Although Bombay had the highest number of dailies also (142), the next largest number of dailies were published from Uttar Pradesh (53), Madhya Pradesh taking the third place with 46. Out of the dailies published from Bombay 42 were, strictly speaking, not newspapers. They were either market reports or commercial bulletins. Two dailies from Uttar Pradesh and one from Madhya Pradesh belonged to the same category.

English continued to have the largest number of papers (1,555), Hindi coming next with 1,439. Hindi, however, claimed the largest share of dailies (114). The number of dailies in English was 71, of which 24 were market reports or commercial bulletins.

A detailed study of the statistics of newspapers of different languages and periodicities in each State has been given in the following pages

Pattern of Study

The study this year has been done on a modified pattern suggested by UNESCO for compilation of data about newspapers in all countries. This is expected to give a clearer picture of the Press, particularly of the daily Press. For this purpose all newspapers have been broadly divided into two categories, namely, General Interest Newspapers and Periodicals.

According to the definition laid down by UNESCO, a "General Interest Newspaper" is any periodical publication, put on sale to the general public, which serves as an initial source of written news of current events in the fields of public affairs, politics, Government etc. The term 'initial source' is used in order to exclude periodicals such as weekly news magazines whose function is to select, summarise or comment on events which have been already reported in newspapers.

The above definition thus covers all general interest dailies and those non-daily publications (such as Sunday newspapers) which resemble dailies in that they give principal attention to events within the 24 hours preceding the time of going to press. The definition also covers non-daily periodical publications in the General Interest field whose news coverage extends over a longer period of time (such as bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies) but which, either because they are local or because have no competitors, serve as an initial source of news for their readers. Sunday newspapers which have been included as non-dailies are those that have a separate legal status and are distinguishable as separate newspapers. Sunday editions regularly produced by a newspaper, however, are not treated as separate newspapers and are not included in non-dailies.

Those dailies and non-dailies which, strictly speaking, are not newspapers, have also been placed under General Interest Newspapers but classed separately. To this category belongs market reports, commercial bulletins, weather reports etc.

Definition of Periodical

A 'periodical' other than a General Interest newspaper, according to the UNESCO definition, is a publication which appears under the same title at regular intervals but more than once a year and whose contents vary widely, ranging from information of a general nature to trade, technical and professional subjects.

The UNESCO definition covers all periodicals published weekly or at longer intervals except annuals. For the purpose of study in this Report, however, annuals have been included but data relating to them have been given separately.

A and B Categories

Apart from the pattern of study suggested by UNESCO, statistics of newspapers have also been analysed separately for those publications which, strictly speaking, are not newspapers. In the Report for 1958 it was mentioned that there were certain categories of publications which were not newspapers in the commonly understood sense. The following classes of publications which, for the purposes of this study has been called B category, have been included in this category. The others have been called A category papers:—

- (i) Market bulletins and commercial circulars.
- (ii) Magazines of educational institutions (school, college etc.).
- (iii) House magazines and publicity journals issued by commercial bodies.
- (iv) Serialised fiction.
- (v) Astrology.
- (vi) Miscellaneous, including racing calendars, price lists, law reports, crossword bulletins, advertisement bulletins, etc.

Collection of Statistics

The collection of statistics of newspapers by the Press Registrar is a continuing process. Information keeps on coming about papers that commence or cease publication, papers that were in existence but had not come to the Press Registrar's notice, or papers that had ceased publication but their cessation had not been reported. In the case of papers that commence publication there is a regular procedure by which information about them is received by the Press Registrar. As soon as an authenticated copy of a declaration filed in respect of a new paper is received by the Press Registrar from the Magistrate concerned, the publisher is asked to send in the Statement of Facts and a copy of its first issue. As soon as these are received, the paper is taken on the Press Registrar's record. Even here, however, there is sometimes delay on the part of the publisher in supplying the necessary particulars in the Statement of Facts, and the paper may not actually be registered during the year in which it commences publication. In the case of papers that cease publication the position is a little more difficult. Since there is no obligation on the part of a publisher to inform the Press Registrar when he stops publication of his paper, information relating to the papers that cease publication during a particular year generally remains incomplete. Such information comes to the Press Registrar through various channels and is often received long after a paper has actually closed down. It is, therefore, possible that the number of papers that ceased publication during a year may be higher than is mentioned in the Press Registrar's Report for that year. In this Report, however, the number of papers shown to have ceased publication during 1959, or earlier, is expected to be very near the correct figure. After the submission of the Annual Report for 1958 notices were served, through District Magistrates, on all those publishers who had failed to submit Annual Statements to show cause why action should not be taken against them for not complying with the provisions of the law. In response to these notices, a number of publishers intimated that their papers had ceased publication. Information was thus received not only about papers that closed down in 1959 but also about those that had stopped publication earlier.

There are also those papers which, though they have been in existence for sometime, are not borne on the Press Registrar's record as information about them has not been furnished to him. Information about such papers is received by the Press Registrar sometime from the publisher himself. Some of them come to notice when they apply for newsprint or ask for some other facility. They are thus taken into account in the statistics for the year in which their existence comes to be known.

Taking all these factors into consideration the final position, given in the Press Registrar's Reports, is as it existed on the last day of the year under review.

Analysis of Statistics

On December 31, 1959, there were 7,651 newspapers published throughout the country as against 6,918 at the end of December 1958. The total number of General Interest newspapers was 547, which included 420 dailies and 36 non-dailies of A category and 91 dailies and non-dailies (published at intervals of less than a week) which belonged to B category papers such as market reports, weather bulletins, etc. The number of periodicals was 7,104.

Of the 7,104 periodicals, 1,464 belonged to B category, including 150 market reports, 615 school and college magazines and 136 house organs. Twenty-seven were journals dealing with astrology, 90 were serialised fiction and 461 belonged to the "Miscellaneous" group consisting of racing calendars, time tables, price lists etc.

New Publications

Among the 1,302 papers that commenced publication during the year 202 belonged to B category. Of these 40 were market reports and bulletins, 67 school or college magazines, 27 publicity journals and house organs, 18 serialised fiction, three astrology and 52 miscellaneous journals.

Among the new papers the largest number (298) was in Bombay. Uttar Pradesh came next with 178. Delhi and West Bengal had 148 each, followed by Madras (118) and Punjab (105). In other States the distribution of new papers was as follows: Andhra Pradesh—64; Assam—13; Bihar—20; Kerala—56; Madhya Pradesh—54; Mysore—31; Orissa—23; Rajasthan—42. The 202 B category papers were distributed as follows: Uttar Pradesh—42; Bombay—35; West Bengal—21; Delhi—37; Madras—15; Punjab—20; Andhra Pradesh—8; Kerala—8; Madhya Pradesh—6; Mysore—1; Orissa—6; Rajasthan—3.

Only one new paper was started from Tripura, two from Manipur and 13 from Assam. During the year the first newspaper to be issued from the Andaman and Nicobar Islands started publication.

Language-wise, the highest number of new newspapers (278) was claimed by Hindi, followed by English (238), Urdu (156), Gujarati (85), Bengali (77), and Tamil (69). There were two new publications in Assamese and one in Sanskrit. Among the new papers there were 141 bilingual publications.

Taking them periodicity-wise, the largest number of new papers (498) were monthlies, including 65 belonging to B category. The next highest number was that of weeklies (330).

Taking language and periodicity together the highest number (124) was that of Hindi monthlies, which included 22 B category publications. This was followed by Hindi weeklies (89), including 10 in the second category. English monthlies (78), including nine in the second category. Urdu weeklies (71), English quarterlies and half-yearlies (67) including twelve in the second category and Gujarati monthlies (54), including five in the second category.

Of the 44 new dailies of A category, 33 morning and 11 evening, 14 were in Hindi, six in Malayalam and Urdu, five in English, three each in Telugu, Tamil and Kannada, two in Marathi and one each in Gujarati and Punjabi. Besides these, six dailies belonging to B category started publication during the year.

Papers that Ceased Publication

Out of the 327 papers that closed down during the year under review 76 were of B category and comprised 13 market reports and bulletins, 25 school or college magazines, 12 publicity journals or house magazines, 2 serialised fiction, one astrology and 23 belonging to the miscellaneous category.

Their State-wise distribution was as follows: A category: Andhra Pradesh—7; Assam—2; Bihar—2; Bombay—52; Kerala—3; Madhya Pradesh—3; Madras—24; Mysore—4; Punjab—38; Rajasthan—5; Uttar Pradesh—57; West Bengal—19; and Delhi—35.

B category: Bihar—3; Bombay—17; Madhya Pradesh—1; Madras—1; Mysore—1; Punjab—7; Rajasthan—2; Uttar Pradesh—24; West Bengal—4; and Delhi—16.

Cessations were the highest in Hindi (80) followed by English (61) and Urdu (53). Of the 14 dailies which ceased publication, 12 morning and two evening dailies, five were in Hindi, four in English, two each in Punjabi and Tamil and one in Telugu.

The distribution of the ceased papers in different languages was as follows:

A category: English—43; Hindi—58; Bengali—11; Gujarati—17; Kannada—3; Malayalam—1; Marathi—8; Punjabi—11; Tamil—12; Telugu—8; Urdu—50; Bi-lingual—21; Multi-lingual—4; Other languages—4.

State and Periodicity-wise Distribution

With its share of over 22 per cent of the total number of newspapers published in the country, Bombay continued to lead other States. West Bengal and Uttar Pradesh came next with 14 per cent and 12 per cent respectively. Delhi and Madras had 9·7 per cent and 9·9 per cent respectively.

Except Punjab, each of the remaining seven States published less than five per cent of the total number of newspapers. Assam continued to have the lowest number of newspapers among all the States and accounted only for 0·7 per cent of the total.

Taken separately, Bombay had the largest number of General Interest newspapers as well as periodicals. The General Interest newspapers included 100 dailies, 90 morning and 10 evening. Also included in this category were six non-dailies, of which four were Sunday papers, one tri-weekly and one bi-weekly. There were 42 dailies and four bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies of B category.

Of the periodicals published from Bombay State 399 were weeklies, 157 fortnightlies and 726 monthlies. These included 47 weeklies, 20 fortnightlies and 117 monthlies of B category.

Uttar Pradesh with 51 dailies, 34 morning and 17 evening, came next to Bombay. The State also had nine bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies under the category of non-daily General Interest newspapers. There were three papers, two dailies and one bi-weekly, which were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Weeklies in Uttar Pradesh numbered 321, including 18 which were not newspapers as commonly understood.

West Bengal continued to occupy the second position in respect of fortnightlies (110 including 14 belonging to B category) and monthlies (402 including 41 in B category).

Dailies

At the end of the year there were 491 dailies published in the country. Of these 352 were morning papers, 68 evening papers and 71 belonged to B category. The largest number of dailies (142) were published from Bombay, of which 90 were morning papers, 10 evening papers and 42 belonged to B category. The next largest number of dailies was from Uttar Pradesh (53), out of which two were B category papers. Then came Madhya Pradesh with 46 dailies.

The number of dailies with A and B break-up in other States was as follows:

Andhra Pradesh: A-25, B-2; Assam: A-2; Bihar: A-9; Kerala: A-37; Madras: A-21, B-11; Mysore: A-37; Orissa: A-5; Punjab: A-26; Rajasthan: A-14; West Bengal: A-24, B-6; Delhi: A-19, B-7; Manipur: A-4; Tripura: A-1.

No daily was published from Himachal Pradesh. Table III shows the State and periodicity-wise distribution of newspapers as on December 31, 1959.

State and Periodicity-wise Distribution

With its share of over 22 per cent of the total number of newspapers published in the country, Bombay continued to lead other States. West Bengal and Uttar Pradesh came next with 14 per cent and 12 per cent respectively. Delhi and Madras had 9·7 per cent and 9·9 per cent respectively.

Except Punjab, each of the remaining seven States published less than five per cent of the total number of newspapers. Assam continued to have the lowest number of newspapers among all the States and accounted only for 0·7 per cent of the total.

Taken separately, Bombay had the largest number of General Interest newspapers as well as periodicals. The General Interest newspapers included 100 dailies, 90 morning and 10 evening. Also included in this category were six non-dailies, of which four were Sunday papers, one tri-weekly and one bi-weekly. There were 42 dailies and four bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies of B category.

Of the periodicals published from Bombay State 399 were weeklies, 157 fortnightlies and 726 monthlies. These included 47 weeklies, 20 fortnightlies and 117 monthlies of B category.

Uttar Pradesh with 51 dailies, 34 morning and 17 evening, came next to Bombay. The State also had nine bi-weeklies and tri-weeklies under the category of non-daily General Interest newspapers. There were three papers, two dailies and one bi-weekly, which were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Weeklies in Uttar Pradesh numbered 321, including 18 which were not newspapers as commonly understood.

West Bengal continued to occupy the second position in respect of fortnightlies (110 including 14 belonging to B category) and monthlies (402 including 41 in B category).

Dailies

At the end of the year there were 491 dailies published in the country. Of these 352 were morning papers, 68 evening papers and 71 belonged to B category. The largest number of dailies (142) were published from Bombay, of which 90 were morning papers, 10 evening papers and 42 belonged to B category. The next largest number of dailies was from Uttar Pradesh (53), out of which two were B category papers. Then came Madhya Pradesh with 46 dailies.

The number of dailies with A and B break-up in other States was as follows:

Andhra Pradesh: A-25, B-2; Assam: A-2; Bihar: A-9; Kerala: A-37; Madras: A-21, B-11; Mysore: A-37; Orissa: A-5; Punjab: A-26; Rajasthan: A-14; West Bengal: A-24, B-6; Delhi: A-19, B-7; Manipur: A-4; Tripura: A-1.

No daily was published from Himachal Pradesh. Table III shows the State and periodicity-wise distribution of newspapers as on December 31, 1959.

State and Language-wise Distribution

The number of newspapers in English continued to be the highest published in any language in the country and accounted for 20·3 per cent of the total number of newspapers. Of these 77 per cent were published from four States, namely: Bombay, West Bengal, Madras and Delhi.

Hindi newspapers, which came next to English in number, accounted for 18·8 per cent of the total. Urdu, Gujarati, Bengali and Marathi claimed 8·2 per cent, 6·8 per cent, 6·7 per cent and 5·2 per cent respectively.

Hindi newspapers were published from all the States, including Orissa, where there was no Hindi newspaper before 1959. No Hindi newspaper was, however, published from Manipur and Tripura. The largest number of Hindi newspapers continued to be published from Uttar Pradesh (555) with Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Delhi and Bihar coming next with 189, 146 and 105 respectively.

Punjab accounted for the largest number of Urdu newspapers (165). Uttar Pradesh and Delhi came next with 148 and 139 respectively.

Each of the other languages accounted for less than 5 per cent of the total, while the number of bi-lingual and multi-lingual was 10 per cent and 6·1 per cent respectively. More than 50 per cent of the multi-lingual papers belonged to the category of periodicals which were, strictly speaking, not newspapers. They were mostly school and college magazines, house journals, etc.

Table IV shows the distribution of newspapers according to State and Language (as on December 31, 1959).

Language and Periodicity-wise Distribution

The largest number of dailies and weeklies continued to be published in Hindi. English claimed the largest number of fortnightlies, monthlies, quarterlies, half-yearlies and annuals. English also claimed the largest number of dailies in the category of market reports, weather bulletins, etc.

Of the 488 annuals, 401 were B category papers. Out of the 951 quarterlies and half-yearlies 359 also belonged to the same category.

Dailies

The language-wise distribution of dailies with their A and B break-up, was as follows:

English: A-47, B-24; Hindi: A-110, B-4; Assamese: A-1; Bengali: A-7; Gujarati: A-36, B-3; Kannada: A-29; Malayalam: A-28; Marathi: A-36, B-15; Oriya: A-4; Punjabi: A-10; Tamil: A-18, B-4; Telugu: A-10, B-1; Urdu: A-62, B-1; Bilingual: A-15, B-18; Multi-lingual: B-1; Other languages: A-7.

Centres of Publication

The increase in the number of newspapers did not result in a wider distribution of the Press. The concentration of newspapers in State capitals, particularly the four metropolitan cities of Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras, increased with the increase in the total number of newspapers in the country.

Of the 7,651 newspapers 47·63 per cent were published from State capitals as against 46·2 per cent in the previous year. From towns with over one lakh of population 25·13 per cent of newspapers were published as against 25·4 per cent in the previous year and from towns with less than one lakh of population 27·25 per cent were published as against 28·4 per cent in 1958.

The four cities of Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras claimed 900, 764, 744 and 557 newspapers respectively. Among them these four cities claimed 38·75 per cent of the total number of newspapers published in the country as against 31·2 per cent in 1958.

State capitals and cities with a population of more than one lakh had a total of 340 dailies, while towns with a population of less than one lakh had only 73. Of State capitals, Bombay claimed 60 dailies, Calcutta 24, Delhi 19 and Madras 12. Three State capitals, namely, Bhubneshwar, Shillong and Simla had no daily.

Of the 456 General Interest newspapers of A category, both dailies and non-dailies, 205 were published from State capitals, 168 from towns with over one lakh of population and 83 from towns with less than one lakh of population.

Of the 91 B category dailies and non-dailies, like market reports, commercial bulletins, etc., 64 were published from State capitals, 18 from towns with over one lakh of population and 10 from towns with less than a lakh of population.

Periodicals

Among periodicals weeklies were concentrated in towns with less than one lakh of population. Of the 1881 weeklies, the share of State capitals, towns with over one lakh of population and towns with less than one lakh of population was 35·51 per cent., 25·94 per cent and 38·54 per cent respectively.

Over 50 per cent of fortnightlies and monthlies, however, were published from State capitals and towns with over one lakh of population. The share of towns with over one lakh of population and less than one lakh of population in respect of fortnightlies and monthlies was 19·2 per cent and 28·39 per cent; and 27·02 per cent and 20·12 per cent respectively.

CHAPTER VI

CIRCULATION

The total average circulation of 4,738 newspapers and periodicals in various languages, about which data were available for the year 1959, was 172·70 lakhs as against 154·28 lakhs commanded by 4,550 papers during 1958. Although this shows an increase of nearly 12 per cent during 1959 over 1958, this comparison will not be valid as the total circulation taken into account during the two years is, in respect of different number of newspapers.

For the purpose of comparison between 1958 and 1959, the circulation of 3,232 newspapers, for which data were available for both the years, has been taken into account. This study shows that the average increase during 1959 was 11·2 per cent over that of 1958.

It is also revealed by the comparative study that the daily newspapers recorded an increase of 13·7 per cent and the weeklies 13·8 per cent over the figures for 1958.

This upward trend in circulation was noticeable in earlier years too. In 1957 there was an increase of ·99 per cent and in 1958 the increase was 8·8 per cent. The data, however, for those two years were not complete and it is, therefore, possible that the actual increase might have been higher.

The increase in circulation during 1959 was shared by newspapers of all periodicities and by papers of all languages except multi-lingual papers and those published in Sanskrit.

The increase in circulation of Hindi papers was 11·8 per cent and that of English papers 9·0 per cent. The highest increase was, however, recorded by Assamese papers (26·8 per cent), followed by Tamil papers with 18·3 per cent. Marathi papers registered an increase of 16·3 per cent and Punjabi 15·4 per cent. There was considerable fall in the circulation of Sanskrit papers for which data were available for both the years, and the circulation of multi-lingual papers declined by 2·6 per cent.

In the case of Assamese papers, although the total circulation commanded by them was not of a high order, the increase was substantial enough to bring the percentage of increase to 26·8. In 1958, the total circulation of Assamese papers was 41,262 and it rose to 51,774 in 1959. The increase was higher among periodicals than among dailies.

Leading Dailies

A feature of the record increase in the circulation of the daily press was that dailies which already commanded circulations above 50,000 in 1958, registered further increases during 1959. Among additions to this category of daily newspapers was a Hindi daily, "Hindustan" published from Delhi. Now this category includes nine English dailies (including two Sunday papers), two each in Hindi, Tamil, Bengali and Malayalam, and one in Marathi. In respect of two papers—one published in Tamil and the other in Telugu—there was a fall in circulation on account of the closure of their editions published from Madras.

Another feature of the increase in the circulations of dailies was that while in 1958 the "Indian Express" (English), "Times of India" (English) and the "Daily Thanthi" (Tamil) had a circulation exceeding one lakh, another daily, "The Hindu" (English) from Madras crossed the one lakh mark in 1959. There were two other newspapers, the "Sunday Standard" and the "Bharat Jyoti", both of which had a circulation of over 50,000 during 1958 but were included among weeklies. Since these are Sunday papers with a distinctive legal status, they have, according to the UNESCO definition, been included this year among the list of dailies with over 50,000 circulation. Of them, the "Sunday Standard" has a circulation above one lakh. There were, therefore, five dailies in 1959 whose circulation was above one lakh.

English Dailies

Considering all the dailies about which data were available, the highest circulation was commanded by English dailies with Hindi papers coming next and Tamil papers third. The combined circulation of all the editions of the "Indian Express" (English) continued to be the highest among English dailies (1,79,768), followed by the "Times of India" (1,39,265). Among the language dailies, the "Daily Thanthi" (Tamil) with all its multiple editions had the highest circulation (1,31,034).

Among weeklies which also recorded as much increase in their circulation during 1959 as the daily press, the highest circulation was commanded by "Anandviketan" (Tamil) (1,58,132) followed by "Kalki" (Tamil) (1,03,688). Among the Hindi weeklies the highest circulation was commanded by "Dharam Yug" (64,194).

Among weeklies published in English, the "Blitz" commanded the highest circulation (87,188). The next in importance were the "Screen" (73,094) and the "Illustrated Weekly" (71,158).

Considering all the periodicals (Excluding B category papers) published in the country, which recorded an over-all increase of 10·7 per cent over that of 1958 figures, the highest circulation was commanded by "Kumдум", a Tamil tri-monthly, followed by "Anandviketan", a Tamil weekly, and "Kalayan", a Hindi monthly, with circulation of 1,67,136, 1,58,132 and 1,14,949 respectively. Among English periodicals, the "Filmfare" (fortnightly) had the highest circulation (1,06,570), followed by the "Blitz" (weekly) (87,188).

Basis of Study

For the purpose of study of circulation, as in the Chapter on Statistics, newspapers have been divided into General Interest Newspapers and Periodicals. A further division shows newspapers in A category and those papers that are, strictly speaking, not newspapers in B category. While among periodicals, B category newspapers consist of market reports, house journals, school or college magazines, serialised fiction, etc. the B category General Interest Newspapers include such dailies and non-dailies which are either market reports, commercial bulletins or weather bulletins, etc.

Circulation as in 1959

The study of circulation of newspapers is based on the data which the publisher of every newspaper is required to furnish to the Press

Registrar in an Annual Statement every year. This Statement contains particulars of circulation under three heads, viz. (i) the number of copies printed, (ii) sold, and (iii) distributed free. In case the number of copies printed per publishing day exceeds 2,000, the publisher's statement is required to be certified by a chartered accountant or a qualified auditor except in the case of newspapers published by educational institutions, charitable societies or trusts generally for the use of their members and not for sale. For 1959, the study of circulation covers 4,738 newspapers, though the total number of Annual Statements received was in respect of 5,232 newspapers. The statements submitted by 494 papers were not taken into account as the information was either incomplete or contained discrepancies. Of the total circulation of 172.70 lakhs recorded in respect of 4,738 newspapers, 141.07 lakh copies were sold and 31.63 lakh copies were distributed free.

In the study in this Chapter, except where otherwise stated, circulation includes copies sold and copies distributed free. In the tables showing the circulation of newspapers on language-cum-periodicity basis, separate figures have been given of copies sold and distributed free as well as the combined total.

Of the 4,738 newspapers in respect of which circulation was available, 3,809 belonged to A category newspapers and controlled 156.46 lakhs (90.6 per cent.) and 929 B category papers 16.24 lakhs (9.4 per cent.). The break-up of circulation of A category papers into copies sold and distributed free was 132.39 lakhs sold and 24.07 lakhs free. The corresponding figures for B category papers were 8.68 lakhs sold and 7.56 lakhs free. While the free circulation of A papers was 15.4 per cent. of their total circulation, the free distribution of B category papers was 46.6 per cent. of their total circulation.

Out of the total circulation in 1959, 15.25 lakhs (8.83 per cent.) was not certified by chartered accountants or qualified auditors as required under the law.

The circulation of 347 General Interest Newspapers of A category was 47.09 lakhs or 27.3 per cent. of the total. Out of this, 42.81 lakhs, or 24.8 per cent. of the over-all total, was commanded by 318 dailies and the rest by 19 non-dailies (bi-weeklies, tri-weeklies and 10 Sunday papers). This circulation comprised 40.88 lakhs copies sold and 1.93 lakhs copies distributed free.

The 65 General Interest dailies and non-dailies of B category, comprising market reports, tradesman's circulars, etc. about which circulation figures were available, had a total circulation of 95,000 (76,000 copies sold and 19,000 distributed free). Out of this 51 dailies had a circulation of 80,000. The combined circulation of all dailies (A and B) was 43.61 lakhs.

Periodicals

The total circulation of 4,326 periodicals, data about which were available for 1959, was 124.66 lakhs, of which 109.37 lakhs was commanded by A category periodicals and 15.29 lakhs by B category. The total circulation of A category periodicals consisted of 87.39 lakhs copies sold and 21.98 lakhs copies distributed free, while for B category periodicals it was 7.92 lakhs copies sold and 7.37 lakhs copies distributed free.

The circulation of various categories of periodicals was as follows:

A category weeklies—1,044 (35.49 lakhs sold—5.05 lakhs free)	40.54 lakhs.
B category weeklies—95 (79,00 sold—61,000 free)	1.40 lakhs.
Total number of weeklies 1,139	41.94 lakhs.
A category fortnightlies—335 (10.79 lakhs sold—3.35 lakhs free)	14.14 lakhs.

There was increase in the total circulation of papers of all periodicities in 1959 as compared to 1958. The number of dailies taken into account in calculating the 1958 revised circulation was 340, while that for 1959 was 318. This was due to the fact that for 1958 information regarding circulation became available for more dailies after the publication of the Report for that year.

Even so, there was a rise in the circulation of A category dailies from 38.19 lakhs to 42.81 lakhs. Taking all dailies (A and B) together the circulation in 1959 was 46.86 lakhs as compared to 41.13 lakhs in 1958.

The following table shows the number of papers, periodicity-wise, in 1958 and 1959 for which circulation data were available, and the circulation commanded by them in each year:—

A similar trend is noticeable in the study of the circulation figures for 1958 and 1959 for papers of different languages.

The table below gives the total number of papers for which data were available for 1958 and 1959, respectively, and their circulation language-wise in each of the two years:—

Comparative Circulation of Common Newspapers

For purposes of comparison and for working out the percentages of increase in circulation only those papers have been taken into account for which data were available for both 1958 and 1959.

The study of the circulation of 3,232 such papers shows an overall increase of 11·2 per cent.

Language-wise the percentage increases were as follows:—

Assamese: 26·8; Tamil: 18·3; Marathi: 16·3; Punjabi: 15·4; bi-lingual: 14·7; 'Other' languages: 13·7; Hindi: 11·8; Telugu: 10·6; Bengali: 10·3; Malayalam: 9·3; English: 9·0; Gujarati: 7·7; Oriya: 7·4; Urdu: 6·9; Kannada: 5·2.

The circulation of Sanskrit papers declined by 50 per cent. and that of multi-lingual papers by 2·6 per cent.

The following table shows the language-wise comparative circulation in 1958 and 1959 of 3,232 papers for which data were available:

Periodicity-wise Increase

Periodicity-wise A category G.I.N. dailies recorded an increase of 13·7 per cent. and B category G.I.N. papers of 85·4 per cent.

The percentage increase among periodicals was as follows:—

Weeklies: 13·8; fortnightlies: 9·6; monthlies: 7·7; quarterlies and half-yearlies: 3·5; annuals: 5·3.

The following table shows the periodicity-wise comparative circulation of those papers for which data were available for both 1958 and 1959:—

Readership Estimates

Table XXXI shows the number of newspapers per lakh of population and the number of copies of issues per thousand of population for the various regional languages. The former estimates relate to the total number of newspapers, whereas the latter relate only to those newspapers for which circulation data are available.

Taking into account newspapers published in all languages, including English, 2.1 newspapers were available per lakh of population in 1959 as compared to 1.9 in 1958.

Among the regional languages, the distribution of newspaper per lakh of population was the highest for Gujarati—3.2 in 1959 as against 2.8 in 1958, about double those for Hindi, Urdu and Punjabi, Kannada, Malayalam, Marathi and Tamil.

The number of copies of issues per thousand of population for the whole country was 47.8 in 1959 as compared to 42.7 in 1958. The number of copies of issues per thousand of population was the highest in 1959 for Tamil (80.2). The number of copies of issues per thousand of population was lowest for Assamese and Oriya, both in 1958 and 1959, and for Oriya there was a decline in 1959 compared to 1958. This decline was perhaps due to the lesser number of newspapers for this language for which circulation data were available for 1959 as compared to 1958.

Distribution of Dailies

Taking dailies separately, the distribution of their copies per thousand of population in India was 10·7 in 1958 and 12·1 in 1959. For this estimate the circulation of 373 dailies, which was available for 1958, has been taken into account. For 1959 the circulation of 369 dailies was available.

Readership in Other Countries

It may be of interest here to give estimates of the number of copies of daily newspapers per thousand of population in some other countries. These estimates have been prepared by UNESCO and are based on data available for the year indicated in each case.

Table XXXII below gives the name of the country, the year for which circulation data were available, the total circulation of dailies and the distribution of copies per thousand of population.

LEADING NEWSPAPERS

Given below are lists of leading newspapers in the country prepared on the basis of their circulation.

The first list contains the names of leading dailies and periodicals with circulation above 50,000. Figures of circulation for both 1958 and 1959 have been given.

The second list contains the names of dailies and periodicals, arranged language-wise, with circulation between 20,000 and 50,000.

Wherever a paper included in these lists has not submitted a chartered accountant's certificate in support of circulation claimed by it, the fact has been indicated by adding "Uncertified" against its circulation.

CHAPTER VII

OWNERSHIP

The study of ownership based on data in respect of over 5,500 newspapers published in the country shows that during 1959 the number of newspapers controlled by chains, groups and multiple units substantially increased, although the percentage of the total circulation commanded by them did not correspondingly improve. Another significant development was the break-up of some chains into small units. The subsidiary units, however, continued to be under the effective control of the original owners and, therefore, for the purposes of this study these units have been treated as parts of chains.

While the growth of chains, groups and multiple units may be attributed to the increase in the number of new papers being established every year, the efforts to divide chains into smaller units was connected with the conditions of service of working journalists. The decline in the percentage of the total circulation in the country commanded by chains, groups and multiple units shows that the rise in the circulation of individual papers has been considerable and newspapers under common ownership, although more in number than in the previous year, did not register a corresponding increase.

Under the Press and Registration of Books Act, and the Rules framed thereunder, the Press Registrar is required to study, in particular, trends in the direction of common ownership of more than one newspaper. The data for the study of ownership of newspapers are mainly derived from particulars furnished by publishers in their Annual Statements. These particulars contain not only details about ownership, but also the latest information including changes, if any, which might have taken place during the year under review. Publishers are also required to give details of the type of ownership, i.e., whether the owner is an individual, joint stock company, firm or partnership, society or trust, etc. and, in the case of companies, the names of all shareholders owning more than one per cent. of the capital. It is further necessary that the relationship between the various shareholders should be mentioned and, in short, effective ownership should be clearly indicated. On the basis of these particulars, an analysis is undertaken of the ownership of various newspapers to indicate the number of papers coming under different types of ownership. This study reveals any shifts in ownership, whether there is increasing concentration of newspapers under common ownership, and also whether the circulation commanded by chains, groups and multiple units shows an increase or decrease.

The study of common ownership of newspapers, as in previous years, is based on three categories, namely, chains, groups and multiple units. While, broadly speaking, the three categories are mutually exclusive, there are certain multiple units which also form parts of chains. Such multiple units have been marked in the list given in this chapter. The three categories include:

- (1) Chains Publication of more than one newspaper under common ownership from more than one centre.
- (2) Groups Publication of more than one newspaper under common ownership from the same centre.
- (3) Multiple Units Publication of more than one newspaper of the same title, language and periodicity, under common ownership, from different centres.

In this Chapter a study has been made of ownership in general and of common ownership separately.

Common Ownership

In the Report for 1956 it was shown that there were nine chains, 13 groups and eight multiple units in the country. This did not, however, represent the correct position as the data received by the Press Registrar at that time was incomplete owing to the failure of many publishers to submit the annual return. Subsequently, more information was available and the statistics relating to groups and multiple units were revised. For the purpose of comparison, therefore, the data for 1957 onwards alone has been taken into consideration in this study.

The number of papers controlled by nine chains, 119 groups and 23 multiple units in 1957 was 63, 316 and 60 respectively. The total circulation commanded by them was as follows:

Chains	18·67 lakhs (17 per cent of the total).
Groups	22·20 lakhs (20 per cent of the total).
Multiple units	11·18 lakhs (9 per cent of the total).

There was a slight increase in the number of chains and groups in 1958, while the number of multiple units remained the same. There were 12 chains, 123 groups and 23 multiple units, controlling 81, 344 and 62 newspapers respectively. The circulation, taking into account papers for which data were available, and the percentage of this to the total circulation of papers in India was:

Chains	21·11 lakhs (14·6 per cent) ;
Groups	29·88 lakhs (20·7 per cent) ; and
Multiple Units	13·09 lakhs (9·7 per cent).

In the case of multiple units, the circulation of papers which simultaneously form parts of chains is also included.

In 1959 there were 15 chains, 162 groups and 30 multiple units, 12 of which simultaneously formed parts of chains. The number of papers controlled by these chains, groups and multiple units was 103, 424 and 80 respectively.

The circulation commanded by chains, groups and multiple units in 1959 was as follows:

Chains	23·23 lakhs (13·4 per cent).
Groups	33·35 lakhs (19·3 per cent).
Multiple units	13·49 lakhs (7·8 per cent).

Twelve multiple units, controlling 32 newspapers, and commanding a circulation of 8.71 lakhs, were parts of chains and their circulation is included in that of chains also.

The following table gives the number of chains, groups and multiple units and the number of newspapers controlled by them:

Year	Chains		Groups		Multiple Units
	No.	News-papers	No.	News-papers	No.	News-papers
1957 . . .	9	63	119	316	23	60
1958 . . .	12	81	123	344	23	62
1959 . . .	15	103	162	424	30	80

Details of circulation of chains, groups and multiple units are given in the following table. The figures relate only to those newspapers in respect of which information was available with the Registrar. The figures in brackets give the percentage of the total circulation of papers in India:

Year	Chains	Groups	Multiple Units
1957 . . .	18.67 lakhs (17 per cent)	22.20 lakhs (20 per cent)	11.8 lakhs (9 per cent)
1958 . . .	21.11 lakhs (14.6 per cent)	29.88 lakhs (20.7 per cent)	13.09 lakhs (9.7 per cent)
1959 . . .	23.23 lakhs (13.4 per cent)	33.35 lakhs (19.3 per cent)	13.49 lakhs (7.8 per cent)

Development of Chains, Groups, etc.

It will be seen from the data given above that there was an increase both in the number of chains, groups and multiple units and the number of papers controlled by them. One of the chains added was owned by an individual and published the "Madhya Pradesh Herald", an English daily from Bhopal, and "Dainik Bhaskar", a Hindi daily from Ujjain, Bhopal and Jhansi. This was formerly a multiple unit and became a chain with the commencement of the publication of an English daily from Bhopal.

The Lokshikshan Trust was formerly publishing a group of papers from Hubli. With the addition of a Kannada daily, the "Samyukta Karnataka", published from Bangalore, this group of papers became a chain.

In the 1958 Report the publications owned by the Ananda Bazar Patrika (Private) Ltd., were shown under Groups consequent on the separation of the "Hindustan Standard", Delhi from the Calcutta papers. On examination of the ownership, however, it was found that the effective ownership of the "Hindustan Standard", Calcutta, the "Ananda Bazar Patrika", Calcutta and the "Delhi Hindustan Standard" was the same. These papers also have, therefore, been included in Chains.

A study of the tables given above will show that while the number of papers controlled by chains has increased from 1957 onwards, the circulation commanded by them has also increased from 18.67 lakhs in 1957 to 21.11 lakhs in 1958 and 23.23 lakhs in 1959. The percentage of the total circulation of papers in India commanded by chains, however, has declined. This is perhaps due to the fact that the overall circulation of papers in the country has considerably increased side by side with the increase in the circulation of chains.

In the case of groups and multiple units also the number of papers controlled by them as well as their total circulation has increased. The percentage of the overall circulation of papers commanded by groups and multiple units had increased slightly in 1958, but declined in 1959.

Breaking up of Chains

During 1959 two newspaper chains were broken up, the different units coming under what, ostensibly, was separate ownership. These were the "Express" and the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" chains. The "Hindustan Standard" chain was broken up in 1958.

(These cases have already been discussed in the Chapter on Declarations in so far as they related to the verification of their titles and filing of declarations.)

Express Group

Till April 1959, the Express Newspapers (Private) Ltd. were publishing a chain of newspapers from Delhi, Bombay, Madras and Madurai. The chain comprised 20 papers. In April that year the group of papers published from Madras closed down. These were the "Indian Express", the "Sunday Standard", the "Andhra Prabha", Telugu daily, the "Andhra Prabha Illustrated Weekly", Telugu weekly, "Dinamani", Tamil daily and "Dinamani Kadir", Tamil weekly. About the same time the Bombay and Madurai groups of papers belonging to the chain were transferred to newly constituted companies, namely, the Indian Express (Bombay) Private Ltd. and the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd. respectively. The original owners, the Express Newspapers (Private) Ltd. continued to own the Delhi papers of the Chain.

Later, the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd. started the "Indian Express" and the "Sunday Standard" from Vijayawada, the printing and publishing of which was entrusted to a new concern, the Andhra Prabha (Private) Ltd. This latter company also owned the "Andhra Prabha", Telugu daily, and "Andhra Prabha Illustrated Weekly" which started publication from Vijayawada after the Madras papers had closed down.

Subsequently, the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd. started the "Indian Express", the "Sunday Standard" and "Dinamani" from Chittoor, and the Andhra Prabha (Private) Ltd., Vijayawada, started the "Andhra Prabha" and "Andhra Prabha Illustrated Weekly" from Chittoor.

The details of ownership of all the papers published by the Express Newspapers (Private) Ltd., from Delhi, by the Indian Express (Bombay) Private Ltd., from Bombay, by the Indian Express (Madurai) Private Ltd., from Madurai, Vijayawada and Chittoor, and by the Andhra Prabha (Private) Ltd., from Vijayawada and Chittoor were examined and it was found that their effective ownership was the same. They have, therefore, been taken as a chain for the purpose of the study of common ownership.

"Amrita Bazar Patrika"

The Amrita Bazar Patrika (Private) Ltd., Calcutta, who owned the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" published from Calcutta and Allahabad, the "Amrita Patrika", Hindi daily, published from Allahabad, and "Jugantar", Bengali daily published from Calcutta, closed down the "Amrita Patrika" in January 1959 and transferred the rights and assets of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika", Allahabad, to a newly formed Company called the Allahabad Patrika (Private) Ltd. This concern began publishing an English daily entitled "The Northern India Amrita Bazar Patrika", from Allahabad which closed down after publishing a few issues. Later, the same concern started the "Northern India Patrika" from Allahabad.

In this case too it was observed that the effective ownership of the Allahabad paper, namely, the "Northern India Patrika", was the same as that of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" and "Jugantar", Calcutta.

Lists of Chains, Groups and Multiple units

Given below are lists of chains, groups and multiple units, as on December 31, 1959, together with the total circulation of each. The lists have been arranged in the order of the total circulation commanded. The date of establishment of each paper forming part of a chain or group has been given within brackets against its name.

In the Express chain, the names of those papers which were being published from Madras and which closed down during the year have been mentioned, but the fact of their cessation has been indicated. They have not been included in the number of papers controlled by the chain but their average circulation for the period during which they were in existence has been taken into account in working out the average overall circulation of the chain.

General Study of Ownership

The study of ownership of newspapers, as has been said earlier, is made mostly on the basis of particulars supplied by publishers in their Annual Statements. In addition, particulars of ownership are sometimes available from the declarations filed by publishers and from the Statements of Facts which every publisher is required to submit soon after a new paper starts publication. Generally, it is noticed that particulars in regard to ownership are available in respect of a larger number of papers than in regard to circulation and a lesser number of ownership statements are found to be discrepant than circulation statements.

At the time of submitting the 1958 Report, particulars of ownership were available in respect of 4,332 papers. Later, as more Annual Statements were received ownership data became available for 960 more papers. The revised data for 1958, therefore, relates to 5,292 papers.

For 1959, data relating to ownership were available for 5,560 papers, and it is on this basis that the following study has been made.

General Pattern of Ownership

The most predominant form of ownership during 1959 continued to be "individual" accounting for 45.1 per cent. of the total in 1959 as against 44.6 per cent. in 1958.

Newspapers owned by societies and associations, including religious societies, formed the second largest group. In 1959 there was a slight rise in the number of newspapers controlled by these societies and associations. As against 21·5 per cent. newspapers owned by these bodies, 28·7 per cent. were owned in 1959.

Joint stock companies, both public and private, claimed 7·7 per cent. of newspapers against 7·4 in 1958. Firms and partnership accounted for 8·2 per cent. in 1959 against 7·87 in 1958.

Government publications, Central and State, accounted for 2·9 per cent. and 2·5 per cent. respectively, against 2·8 per cent. and 2·7 per cent. in 1958.

Tables IA and IB give State-wise distribution of ownership of Newspapers for 1959 and 1958 (revised) respectively.

Periodicity-wise distribution of ownership in 1959

Dailies in the country continued to be owned mostly by individuals. Of the 348 dailies 44·0 per cent. were owned by individuals. Joint stock companies came second with 28·7 per cent., the share of public and private limited companies being 11·2 per cent. and 17·5 per cent. respectively. Firms and partnerships accounted for 15·2 per cent., trusts 5·2 per cent. and societies and associations 4·0 per cent.

Three dailies were owned by co-operative societies and seven by political parties.

Of the weeklies, 68·3 per cent. were owned by individuals, followed by firms and partnerships (10·3 per cent.), societies and other associations (7·3 per cent.) and joint stock companies (7·0 per cent.). The share of political parties was 1·8 per cent. and that of Central and State Governments 1·1 per cent. each.

Ownership by individuals accounted for 52·8 per cent. of fortnightly, followed by societies and other associations (18·2 per cent.), foreign missions (5 per cent.), Central and State Governments (4·2 per cent.) and (3·0 per cent.).

Next to individual owners controlling 44·0 per cent. of monthlies, societies and associations accounted for 30·6 per cent. and firms and partnerships for 7·9 per cent. Between them Central and State Governments accounted for 6·0 per cent. of monthlies.

Societies and associations accounted for 32·3 per cent. of half-yearlies and quarterlies while educational institutions claimed 27·0 per cent. Among the annuals which included most of the school and college magazines, 76·6 per cent. were owned by educational institutions. Individuals owned 7·6 per cent. of the annuals and Government, Central and States, 5·9 per cent. Tables IIA and IIB show the periodicity-wise distribution of ownership of newspapers for 1959 and 1958 (revised) respectively.

Language-wise distribution of ownership

More than 50 per cent. of newspapers in eight languages were owned by individuals. Except English and Assamese, in all other languages individual ownership accounted for more than 40 per cent. of newspapers published in any of these languages. In English 27 per cent. newspapers published in that language were owned by individuals.

The largest number of newspapers owned by individuals were in Urdu (74.8 per cent.) followed by Kannada (62 per cent.), Tamil (60.5 per cent.), Marathi (58.5 per cent.), Telugu (56 per cent.), Punjabi (55 per cent.), Oriya (51.2 per cent.) and Bengali (50.3 per cent.).

In Malayalam, Gujrati, Sanskrit, bi-lingual, multi-lingual and newspapers in "other languages" the percentage as owned by individuals was 45.8 per cent., 45.5 per cent., 41.7 per cent., 37.5 per cent., 8 per cent. and 43 per cent. respectively.

Ownership by joint stock company was the highest (16.4 per cent.) in the case of English and the lowest in the case of Urdu newspapers (1.39 per cent.).

Educational institutions accounted for 70.5 per cent. of the multi-lingual and 23 per cent. of the bi-lingual papers which mostly were School or College magazines.

Out of the 160 Central Government publications, 56.25 per cent. of the newspapers published by the State Governments were in English and 13.12 per cent. in Hindi.

Tables IIIA and IIIB give the language-wise distribution of ownership in 1959 and 1958 (revised) respectively.

Ownership-Circulation

A study was undertaken in 1959 to find the correlation between the number of newspapers under different categories of ownership and circulation commanded by them. With the purpose of giving perspective to the study data relating to 1958 and 1957 were also collected.

The study for each year was based on the newspapers for which data relating to both ownership and circulation was available. In 1959 the study was based on 4,432 papers belonging to different categories of ownership. The total circulation commanded by them was 16.6 lakhs.

It is revealed that although the number of newspapers owned by individuals was 43.6 per cent., they commanded only 35.3 per cent. of the total circulation.

Joint stock companies, both public and private, controlled 8.4 per cent. of the papers which claimed 28.8 per cent. of the circulation. This was indicative of the fact that papers under the control of joint stock companies had larger circulation than those under other types of ownership.

Societies and associations, including religious associations, controlled 21.8 per cent. of the papers which claimed only 10.0 per cent. of the circulation.

Between them Central and State Governments publications claimed 5.9 per cent. of the papers and 5.8 per cent. of the circulation.

Firms and partnership accounted for 8.1 per cent. of the papers, but the circulation claimed by these papers was 9.9 per cent. of the total.

Co-operative Societies controlled 0.6 per cent. of the papers and 0.3 per cent. of circulation.

Educational institutions controlling 7.1 per cent. of the papers claimed 1.7 per cent. of the circulation, and political parties controlling 1.0 per cent. papers claimed 0.9 per cent. of the circulation.

Table IV below gives the number of newspapers studied under different categories of ownership and circulations commanded by them during 1957, 1958 and 1959.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

The State-wise, periodicity-wise and language-wise distribution of newspapers and periodicals published by the Central and State Governments in respect of which Annual Statements for 1958 and 1959 had been received is given in Tables IA to IIIA and IB to IIIB. The total number of these publications, however, according to the records of the Press Registrar was 356 in 1959, the Central and the State Governments accounting for 186 and 170 respectively.

Central Government Publications

Out of the 186 papers issued by the Central Government, 132 were published by different Ministries and Departments of the Government of India and 54 by semi-government and autonomous bodies under the Central Government.

The language-wise distribution of these papers was: English, 113; Hindi, 32; Telugu, five; Bengali, four; Marathi, Tamil and Urdu, three each; Gujarati and Kannada, two each and Malayalam, Oriya and Sanskrit, one each. Of the remaining 16, eight were bilingual, one multilingual, and seven in 'other' languages.

The periodicity-wise distribution of the newspapers published by the Central Government was; dailies, three (the weather bulletin issued by the Meteorological Department, Delhi; the Daily List of Imports and the Daily List of Exports issued by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry from Bombay), weeklies, 16; fortnightlies, 23; monthlies, 73; quarterlies and half-yearlies etc., 54; annuals, 17.

Of the total number of 186 papers, 120 were published from Delhi, 24 from Bombay, 17 from West Bengal, nine from Madras, six from Uttar Pradesh, five from Kerala, three from Madhya Pradesh and one each from Assam and Mysore.

State Government Publications

Out of 170 newspapers and periodicals issued by the State Governments, 62 were in Hindi, 40 in English, 12 in Gujarati, eight in Marathi, five in Bengali, four each in Oriya and Urdu, three each in Kannada and Tamil, two each in Malayalam, Punjabi, and Telugu and one in Assamese. Of the remaining 22, 11 were bilingual, eight multi-lingual and three were in 'other' languages.

The Uttar Pradesh Government and the local bodies under it published the largest number (40), followed by Bombay with 37. The number of papers issued by other State Governments was: Bihar, 18; Madhya Pradesh, 16; West Bengal, 13; Orissa, 11; Madras, and Punjab, eight each; Mysore, five; Kerala and Andhra Pradesh, three each; Assam, Rajasthan and Delhi, two each and Himachal Pradesh and Tripura, one each.

The periodicity-wise break-up of the State Government publications was: 20 weeklies, 24 fortnightlies, 95 monthlies, 27 quarterlies and half-yearlies etc. and four annuals.

Embassy Publications

There were 47 publications issued by the various embassies, legations and consulates etc. of foreign countries in India. Of these 35 were periodicals and 12 news bulletins issued mainly for the use of the Press. The Soviet Embassy published "Soviet Land" (fortnightly) in 13 languages, namely, English, Gujarati, Marathi from Bombay, Hindi, Kannada, Malayalam, Punjabi, Tamil, Telugu, Urdu and Nepalese from Delhi, and Bengali, and Oriya from Calcutta. The U.S. Embassy's periodicals, the "American Labour Review" (monthly) in English and Hindi and the "American Review" (English quarterly), were published from Delhi. The "American Reporter" (fortnightly) was published in seven different languages namely, English and Hindi from Delhi, Marathi from Bombay, Malayalam, Tamil and Telugu from Madras and Bengali from Calcutta.

Other periodicals published were: Consulate of Israel—"News from Israel" (English fortnightly), Bombay; Consulate of U.A.R.—"United Arab Republic News" (English fortnightly), Bombay; Italian Consulate—"Bi-Peninsular Magazine" (English monthly), Bombay; Swedish Trade Commission—"Swedish Trade News" (English quarterly), Bombay; Czechoslovak Embassy—"Czechoslovakia" (English monthly), Delhi; Canadian High Commission—"Canadian Bulletin" (English fortnightly), Delhi; Bulgarian Legation—"News from Bulgaria" (fortnightly) in Hindi, Malayalam, Bengali and Urdu, all from Delhi; German Embassy—"Information Bulletin" (English monthly), Delhi; Turkish Embassy—"News from Turkey" (English fortnightly), Delhi

The Soviet Embassy issued a news bulletin, "News and Views from Soviet Union" in eight languages, namely English, Hindi, Malayalam, Telugu, Urdu, Punjabi, Tamil from Delhi and in Bengali from Calcutta. English Bulletins were issued both daily and tri-weekly. The bulletins in Punjabi and Tamil were issued bi-weekly and the rest tri-weekly. Other news bulletins were: "China Today", (weekly) in English and Hindi, Delhi; and "German News Weekly" (English), Delhi

CHAPTER VIII

THE LANGUAGE PRESS

On the basis of information available with the Press Registrar, a survey of the language Press in the country has been made. The main points emerging from the survey are briefly mentioned below.

Hindi

Hindi papers were being published from all the States in 1959. Until 1958 Orissa was the only exception but when "Sat Sandesh", a Hindi monthly, commenced publication from Kantabanji, Orissa also came to have a Hindi paper. The only areas from where no Hindi papers were still being published in 1959 were the Union Territories of Tripura and Manipur.

A feature of the development of the Hindi Press during the year was an increase both in the number and circulation of Hindi papers. Next to English, the largest number of papers were in Hindi. In 1958 there were 1,263 Hindi papers being published from different centres in the country. By December 31, 1959, this number had risen to 1,439. These included 278 papers which started publication during the year. Of these 14 were dailies, seven of which commenced publication in Madhya Pradesh which had the highest number of Hindi dailies.

The State-wise distribution of Hindi papers was: Uttar Pradesh, 555; Madhya Pradesh, 189; Rajasthan, 158; Delhi, 146; Bihar, 105; Bombay, 104; West Bengal, 85; Punjab, 70; Andhra Pradesh, 10; Madras, 7; Assam, 4; Himachal Pradesh, 3; Mysore, Kerala and Orissa, one each.

The total circulation commanded by 875 papers in 1959 was 35.53 lakhs as against 30.01 lakhs commanded by 844 papers in 1958. Taking into account only those papers for which data were available for both 1958 and 1959, there was an increase of 11.8 per cent. in the circulation of Hindi papers.

There were also casualties in the Hindi Press and 80 papers closed down during the year. These included five dailies, one of which was the "Amrita Patrika", Allahabad, a constituent unit of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" chain of papers. The others were "Rashtra-vani", Patna, "Halchal", Bareilly, "Abhiyan", Kanpur, and "Dehat", Muzaffarnagar.

Amongst Hindi dailies the highest circulation (79,894) was commanded by "Nav Bharat Times" (Bombay and Delhi), followed by "Hindustan", Delhi, with 51,785. In 1958 their circulation was 72,615 and 47,907 respectively.

The other dailies that registered increase in circulation were:

	1958	1959
Aj, Varanasi	11,273	14,066
Nav Jyoti, Ajmer	6,400	8,180
Bharat, Allahabad	4,650	6,396
Darbar, Ajmer	2,779	5,964
Mewat, Gurgaon	3,986	5,825

Assamese

Since the "Dainik Santidoot" closed down in 1956, after a brief existence of two years, there has been only one daily in Assamese, namely, "Natun Assamiya", Gauhati, which was established in 1948.

Although there was an increase of 26·8 per cent. in the combined circulation of Assamese papers in 1959 as compared to 1958, the individual circulation of Assamese papers was, generally, not above the 5,000 mark. The only exceptions were "Assam Bani", an Assamese weekly, having a circulation of 22,760, and "Janmabhumi", an Assamese weekly, with a circulation of 10,608. The only Assamese daily, "Natun Assamiya" had a circulation of 4,613. Of the two new Assamese papers that came into existence in 1959, one was a fortnightly and one a monthly.

It would thus appear that the periodical, particularly the weekly, has made greater progress in the Assamese Press than the daily. That is perhaps due to the difficulties of communication in Assam because of which the circulation of the daily Press is confined to towns, but a periodical still retains its interest by the time the reader in outlying area gets his copy.

It is perhaps because of this factor that almost all Assamese weeklies carry a summary of the news in addition to other features.

Bengali

There was an increase of 10·3 per cent. in the circulation of Bengali papers during 1959 as compared to 1958. The rise in circulation was of a higher order than during 1958 when Bengali papers had registered an increase of only 0·9 per cent.

The total circulation commanded by 326 Bengali papers in 1959 was 9·23 lakhs as against 8·09 lakhs commanded by 305 papers in 1958.

The daily Press in Bengali continued to be concentrated entirely in Calcutta. Both leading Bengali dailies, "Ananda Bazar Patrika" and "Jugantar" increased their circulation during 1959 to 84,035 and 80,401 respectively. Their circulation in 1958 was 79,391 and 76,918. The next highest circulation claimed by a Bengali daily was that of "Basumati" (20,753).

The leading periodicals were "Desh", a weekly published from Calcutta (31,484) and "Suktara", a monthly, also published from Calcutta (24,166).

Gujarati

On the basis of the circulation data available for 1959, the number of newspapers in Gujarati per lakh of Gujarati-speaking population was 3.2, the highest in any language.

The circulation of Gujarati papers increased in 1959 by 7.7 per cent. This increase was, however, not as marked as that registered by Gujarati papers in 1958 when their circulation had gone up by 13.4 per cent. The total circulation of 208 Gujarati papers in 1959 was 9.97 lakhs as against 9.26 lakhs in 1958.

The leading dailies in Gujarati were "Jansatta" (29,358) and "Sandesh" (28,158), both published from Ahmedabad.

During 1959, 85 new Gujarati papers were started, including one daily.

Kannada

Kannada was one of the two languages, the other being Punjabi, in which the number of papers published in the country came down in 1959 as compared to 1958. Although there was an addition of 20 new papers in the language, the total number of Kannada papers declined from 229 in 1958 to 223 in 1959. There was, however, an addition of four dailies to the Kannada Press.

In circulation, however, the position of Kannada papers improved and their circulation registered an increase of 5.2 per cent. This percentage is based on the circulation of papers for which data were available for both 1958 and 1959. Taking the over-all position in 1958, 124 papers had a circulation of 3.79 lakhs, while in 1959 the circulation of 126 papers was 4.70 lakhs.

The Samyukta Karnataka Group of papers published from Hubli was converted into a Chain with the addition of "Samyukta Karnataka" published from Bangalore. This was the first all-Kannada Chain of papers.

Malayalam

With the addition of six new papers during the year the number of Malayalam dailies increased to 28, all of which were being published from Kerala. To this number may be added another eight which, though mainly published in Malayalam, are registered as bi-lingual as part of the material included in them is in English. At the same time the circulation of Malayalam dailies registered a 25 per cent increase over that of 1958.

Two dailies in Malayalam had circulation above 50,000. These were "Malayala Manorama" and "Mathrubhumi". Four other dailies commanded circulation above 20,000 each. Three of the dailies which started publication during the year built up circulation above 10,000 each by the close of the year.

The increase in circulation was shared by papers of other periodicities too and there was an over-all increase of 9.3 per cent.

With a high percentage of literacy in Kerala, from where most of the Malayalam papers are published, the readership of papers in that language is more widely distributed. With one exception, all the districts have their daily newspapers, some of which command a fairly large circulation.

The increase in the number of Malayalam papers in 1959 was not confined to dailies only. Out of the 34 papers that started publication during the year, there were seven weeklies, three fortnightlies and 18 monthlies.

Marathi

With the addition of two more dailies during the year, the number of Marathi dailies increased to 51. Out of these 15 were market reports, leaving 36 A category papers. Of these, "Loksatta" had the highest circulation (73,826), followed by five others, namely, "Sakal", Poona, "Maratha", Bombay, "Nava Shakti", Bombay, "Tarun Bharat", Nagpur and Bombay, and "Lokmitra", Bombay, which commanded circulation between 20,000 and 50,000.

Among periodicals, four had circulation above 30,000. These were "Lokrajya", weekly from Bombay, "Swarajya", weekly from Poona, "Kesari", tri-weekly from Poona and "Chandobha", monthly from Madras.

The Marathi Press was concentrated mostly in three centres of publication, namely, Bombay, Poona and Sholapur.

Including the two dailies mentioned above, 50 new papers were added to the Marathi Press during the year. As against this, the cessations were nine and these included no daily.

Amongst Marathi periodicals the largest number (92) were those dealing with news and current affairs. The next highest number was that of periodicals relating to literary and cultural subjects.

Oriya

There were 78 papers in the language published at the end of the year under review. Of these 67 appeared from Orissa. Among the 14 new additions, two were weeklies, four fortnightlies, five monthlies, and three annuals. The circulation of Oriya papers registered an overall increase of 7.4 per cent over that of the previous year. The leading papers in the language continued to be the following four dailies of Cuttack which shared the increase in circulation as shown below:

	1958	1959
Samaj	13,764	14,835
Prajatantra	13,590	13,664
Matrubhumi	11,040	11,869
Ganatantra	5,578	6,474

Punjabi

There was a decline in the number of Punjabi papers from 133 at the end of 1958 to 127 on December 31, 1959, but their circulation increased by 15.4 per cent. In Punjab, however, where most of the Punjabi Press is concentrated, there was an increase in the number of Punjabi papers. A feature of this increase was that it was shared by small-town papers as well as by those published from bigger towns.

One Punjabi paper, "Khalsa Sewak" changed its place of publication from Amritsar to Delhi and one daily, "Punjabi Sher", published from Muktsar in Punjab, closed down.

Two Punjabi dailies continued to be published from Calcutta.

Tamil

Tamil's share of the general increase in the number of papers in the country was 37, the total number of Tamil papers increasing from 324 in 1958 to 361 in 1959. The actual number of new publications during the year, however, was 69. This was to some extent offset by closures. In circulation, however, the progress of Tamil papers was more marked. They had a higher increase (18·3 per cent) than that of newspapers in any other language except Assamese. In 1959, the total circulation of 231 Tamil papers was 21·25 lakhs as compared to 17·58 lakhs circulation of 221 papers in 1958.

Two Tamil weeklies, "Anandavikatan" and "Kalki", and one Tri-monthly "Kumudam", crossed the one-lakh mark, and the Tamil daily "Thanti" increased its circulation by 13,890 and continued to have the highest circulation among language dailies.

Tamil dailies suffered two casualties in the closure of "Dinamani" and "Samudayam". But this was made up for by the re-emergence of "Dinamani" from Chittoor and the publication of "Thina Seethi" and "Mali Murasu" from Madras. The first film daily to be published in the country was also a Tamil paper, "Thenral Therai".

Telugu

There was a noticeable shift in the concentration of the Telugu Press from Madras to Andhra Pradesh. With the closure of "Andhra Prabha" in Madras and its re-publication from Vijayawada and Chittoor, only one Telugu daily was left in Madras State. Another indication of the same trend was that out of 37 new Telugu papers that commenced publication during the year, 28 were established in Andhra Pradesh. That State came to have ten Telugu dailies by the end of 1959.

The Telugu papers published from Madras, however, had a higher circulation than those published from Andhra Pradesh. It was noticed that 123 Telugu papers published from Andhra Pradesh commanded 2·81 lakhs circulation as against 3·57 lakhs commanded by 40 papers published from Madras.

There was an over-all increase of 10·6 per cent in the circulation of Telugu papers. Telugu dailies, taken separately, showed an increase in circulation of 35·8 per cent as compared to 1958. Consequent on its closure at Madras, the "Andhra Prabha", a leading Telugu daily, when it commenced publication from Vijayawada, showed a decline in circulation from 56,360 to 37,110.

Urdu

As in 1958, Urdu continued to occupy the third place in regard to the number of papers published in different languages. The total number of papers published in Urdu increased from 566 in 1958 to 627 in 1959. Although 53 Urdu papers closed down during the year, these included no dailies. On the other hand, out of the 156 new papers that came into existence during the year, six were dailies. Two of these, "League" and "Iqdam-e-Jadid", commenced publication from Hyderabad. The others were "Rohjan", from Ludhiana in Punjab, "Elan" from Bangalore, "Jai Bharat" from Delhi, and "Final Mubarak" from Bombay, the last being a paper of the B category. Amongst the new papers the largest number (71) was that of weeklies.

The Urdu Press was concentrated mostly in three States, namely, Punjab, Delhi and Uttar Pradesh which, between them published 72·1 per cent of Urdu papers.

There was an increase of 6·9 per cent in the circulation of Urdu papers as compared to 1958. The circulation of 51 dailies, for which figures were available for 1959, was 2·53 lakhs as against 2·22 lakhs in 1958 for the same number of dailies. The rise in circulation was more marked in the case of weeklies. In 1958, 128 weeklies had a circulation of 2·15 lakhs, and in 1959 weeklies had a circulation of 2·83 lakhs. The circulation of monthlies showed a decline from 4·25 lakhs to 3·59 lakhs for 128 monthlies in each year. Two monthlies, however, continued to command circulation above 50,000, namely, "Astana", Delhi, (77,967) and "Shama", Delhi, (57,166).

CHAPTER IX

STUDY OF CONTENTS OF PERIODICALS AND THE DAILY PRESS

The study of the contents of newspapers for the purpose of their classification into different categories is, in this Chapter, confined to periodicals only. General Interest newspapers, which have been defined as "periodical publications which serve as an initial source of written news of current events in the fields of public affairs, international affairs, Government etc." are, by virtue of this definition itself, a class apart and do not admit of further classification. The contents of periodicals, on the other hand, range over a variety of subjects, from politics to poetry, from science to fiction. They can thus be classified into different categories.

However, according to the UNESCO definition (given in the Chapter on Statistics of Newspapers), those dailies and non-dailies, published at intervals of less than a week, which deal with special subjects, such as market reports, commercial bulletins etc. have been included in this study along with periodicals which may also be dealing with subjects of a similar nature.

Classification into 27 categories

For the purpose of this study 27 categories were used, as in previous years, and according to their contents papers were placed under one or the other. These categories are: (i) News and Current Affairs, (ii) Literary and Cultural, (iii) Religion and Philosophy, (iv) Women, (v) Children, (vi) Films, (vii) Sports, (viii) Radio and Music, (ix) Education, (x) Science, (xi) Medicine and Health, (xii) Art, (xiii) Social Welfare, (xiv) Commerce and Industry, (xv) Finance and Economics, (xvi) Insurance, Banking and Cooperation, (xvii) Labour, (xviii) Law and Public Administration, (xix) Agriculture and Animal Husbandry, (xx) Engineering and Technology, (xxi) Transport and Communications, (xxii) Market Reports and Bulletins, (xxiii) School/College Magazines, (xxiv) Publicity Journals/House Organs, (xxv) Astrology, (xxvi) Fiction, and (xxvii) Miscellaneous.

It may be stated, however, that except in the case of specialised or technical journals, which devote themselves exclusively to particular subjects, a precise classification of periodicals is difficult. In a large number of cases, the contents of periodicals are such that different categories of classification seem to overlap. A women's magazine may deal with subjects extraneous to its own sphere of interest. Quite a large number of periodicals on news and current affairs have articles on films and a children's journal may be found to contain material on scientific subjects. A University journal, like the one published by the Vishwabharti, for instance, may have a much wider appeal than that of a purely university magazine and has to be classified on the basis of its contents and not as the publication of an educational institution only. To draw a hard and fast line between one category and another is, therefore, not always possible.

An idea of the difficulty involved in being precise about the classification of periodicals can be had from the fact that different countries have different categories for such classification. While the U.S.A. has 27 categories, which are not the same as are used in India, the U.S.S.R. has only 12 and France 16. In Britain, a comprehensive Press directory published by a private firm does not attempt to use specified heads of classification but gives a separate category for each individual paper or group of papers.

In classifying newspapers, therefore, the principal interest of each paper has been taken into account and a number of copies of each periodical were examined before making a decision. In some cases the publisher himself gave an indication of the classification of the paper by some such declaration as "Magazine for Children" and this was invariably accepted.

In all 6,314 periodicals were examined out of 7,196 (including 91 dailies and non-dailies such as market reports, commercial bulletins, etc.) on the Press Registrar's record. In the remaining cases copies had not been received by the Press Registrar and, therefore, their classification could not be carried out.

The largest single group among periodicals was that of News and Current Affairs, comprising 1,544 papers, followed by Literary and Cultural (773), Religion and Philosophy (711), Social Welfare (247), Commerce and Industry (212), Medicine and Health (209), Films (204) and other groups. B category papers consisting of School/College Magazines, Market Reports/Bulletins, Publicity Journals/House Organs, Astrological journals, Fiction and Miscellaneous publications numbered 1,287 and were 18·9 per cent of the total number of papers and 20·3 per cent of the periodicals examined.

Under the News and Current Affairs category, the number of Hindi papers (413) was the highest. The number of papers of some other languages was: Urdu 208, English 207, Bengali 154, Bilingual 98, Marathi 92, Kannada 73, Gujarati 67, Tamil 61, and Telugu 58. Periodicity-wise this category claimed 1,167 weeklies, 221 fortnightlies, 132 monthlies, 23 papers of 'other periodicities' and one annual.

In the Literary and Cultural group Hindi had a share of 166 followed by Bengali (115) and Urdu (84). Tamil came next with 64 papers. There were 60 English newspapers in this category. Gujarati, Marathi, Bilingual and "other" language papers numbered 53, 38, 37 and 31 respectively. Considered on the basis of periodicity the category had 542 monthlies and 103 'other periodicity' papers as against 71 weeklies and 11 annuals.

The Religion and Philosophy group included 127 English and 116 Hindi papers. There were 84 Urdu, 77 Bilingual and 59 Tamil papers while Gujarati (49), Bengali (43) and Telugu (42) preceded numerically Malayalam (37) and Punjabi (20) under this category. There were 517 monthlies, 81 'other periodicity' papers, 80 weeklies and 32 fortnightlies in this group.

The Social Welfare group had 83 papers in Hindi and 43 papers in English. Gujarati with 25 papers, Marathi with 19 and Tamil and Bilingual with 14 papers each came next. This group had 138 monthlies, 49 weeklies, 32 fortnightlies and 28 of 'other periodicities'.

Under the Commerce and Industry category there were 141 English, 20 Hindi and 19 Bilingual papers. The group had 129 monthlies and 34 papers of 'other periodicities'. There were in addition 23 weeklies, 20 fortnightlies and six annuals.

English claimed 90 papers of the Medicine and Health group. Hindi with 26 papers, Urdu with 22, Bilingual with 20 and Telugu with 13 papers came next. This category had 148 monthlies, 50 papers of 'other periodicities', four weeklies, six fortnightlies and one annual.

The Films category included 38 English, 33 Tamil, 31 Hindi, 20 Urdu, 18 Bengali and 14 Telugu papers. The group had 106 monthlies, 58 weeklies, 37 fortnightlies, two papers of 'other periodicities' and one annual.

Tables I and II show the language-wise and periodicity-wise classification of periodicals.

Daily Press

The larger number of dailies published in the country came under A category of General Interest Newspaper. Of 491 dailies published in different languages, 420 or 85·5 per cent belonged to this category as against 86·9 per cent during 1958. The remaining 71 or 14·5 per cent were B category papers compared to 13·1 per cent in 1958. These included market reports and bulletins, shipping time-tables, weather reports etc. As in the previous year, a language-wise list of all dailies known to be in existence at the end of the year under review is being given below indicating title and place of publication of each paper. Classification of all B category papers has been mentioned in the list in brackets. The circulation of each paper as in 1959 has been shown against it (S stands for copies sold and F for copies distributed free).

CHAPTER X

SPECIALISED AND TECHNICAL PERIODICALS

On the basis of the data available with the Press Registrar, a study has been made, in this Chapter, of publications which deal exclusively with special subjects as compared to those whose contents cover a more varied field or those that deal with news and current affairs only.

The categories of journals, the growth of which has been studied here, are the following:

1. Agriculture and Animal Husbandry.
2. Commerce and Industry.
3. Engineering and Technology.
4. Films.
5. Finance and Economics.
6. Medicine and Health.
7. Science.
8. Serialised Fiction.
9. Sports.
10. Transport and Shipping.
11. Women.

Of the 1,068 periodicals belonging to these categories journals on commerce and industry form the largest group with 213 publications. Combined with periodicals on finance and economics (the two groups overlapping to a considerable extent), they claim 246 periodicals.

Medical journals form the second largest group with 209 periodicals. Film journals, numbering 205, come third, followed by serialised fiction (90) and journals on agriculture and animal husbandry (86). There are 76 journals on engineering and technology, 63 on transport and shipping, 38 women's journals and 34 scientific journals. Periodicals dealing with sports form the smallest group (21).

A comparative study of the growth and development of periodicals of these categories reveals that the most remarkable progress has been in the categories of medical and health and finance and economics (combined with commerce and industry). Periodicals in these categories have grown both in number and popularity. Although the same trend is noticeable in the case of scientific journals, their growth in the regional languages has not been marked. Only four scientific journals are published in Indian languages and they do not command much circulation, the most highly circulated being a little over 1,000.

Most of the periodicals devoted to technical subjects have limited circulation, although some of them have considerable standing. That is perhaps because they cater to particular interests only.

An interesting aspect of the growth of specialised periodicals is the increase in their number in the regional languages. Film and women's journals published in regional languages are greater in number and command a higher circulation than those published in English. Film journals particularly have been growing in popularity, as indicated by their rising circulation during the last few years

Journals published by Governments (Central and State) or by autonomous bodies claim a large share of periodicals on agriculture and animal husbandry and transport and shipping. Such periodicals are also the most widely circulated among journals of the same category.

Sports journals have yet to come into their own. Of 21 such periodicals published in the country only four are in Indian languages and these, with the exception of one Bengali publication, do not command large circulation. Among English publications on sports too only one has a substantial circulation.

Periodicals publishing serialised fiction have of late shown a rise in their number and circulation. These are, however, not, strictly speaking, newspapers and more in the nature of books published at fixed intervals under a common title.

Science

Except for four, two in Hindi and one each in Bengali and Telugu, all the scientific journals in the country are published in English. The highest circulation (1,420) among this class of journals is, however, commanded by the Bengali journal, "Jnan-O-Bijnan", which is being published since 1948 from Calcutta. In English "Science and Culture", a monthly published from Calcutta, has the highest circulation (1,338).

Of the two Hindi scientific monthlies, "Vignan", published from Allahabad, started publication in 1913. The other, "Vignan Pragati", is being published from Delhi since 1952. Some of the oldest scientific journals are: the "Journal of Bombay Natural History Society", established in 1886, the "Journal of Indian Chemical Society", published from Calcutta, being published since 1924, the "Indian Journal of Physics" of Calcutta, started in 1927, and the "Indian Geographical Journal", being published from Madras since 1926.

The largest number of scientific journals (16 out of 31) are published from Calcutta.

Among the recent additions to scientific periodicals are the journals published by the National Laboratories set up by Government. The "Journal of Genetics", owned and edited by Professor J. B. S. Haldane, is being published from Calcutta since 1958. The Association of Scientific Workers of India publishes an English monthly entitled "Vijnan Karmee".

Medicine and Health

There has been a marked rise in the number of journals in this category during the last 10 years. Of the 192 journals on health and medicine, 107, or 56 per cent., came into existence between 1949 and 1959.

A distinctive feature of this growth is the increase in the number of such journals in Indian languages. Except for Assamese, journals on health and medicine are now published in all Indian languages. Those published in English, however, continue to be the largest in number and claim the largest share of the circulation of periodicals of this class.

All the different systems of medicine practised in the country are covered by these journals. A recent development has been the addition of periodicals dealing with different branches of medical science.

The largest number (37) of medical and health journals are published from Calcutta. Bombay has 31 and Delhi 30.

The oldest journal in this category is the "Indian Medical Record", which is being published from Calcutta since 1880. The "Journal of the Indian Medical Association", which claims a circulation of 21,322, the largest among this group of journals, came into existence in 1930. "Antiseptic", an English monthly from Madras which claims a circulation of 11,805, is being published since 1904, while the "Indian Medical Review", which also claims a circulation of 11,000, came into existence in 1953.

Among medical journals in Indian languages, "Dukh Niwaran", a Punjabi monthly from Amritsar, is the oldest, its date of establishment being 1906. It claims a circulation of over 4,000. "Sudha Nindi", a Hindi monthly from Allahabad, is being published since 1909, although it has a comparatively smaller circulation of 500.

Finance and Economics, Commerce and Industry

The increasing tempo of economic activity in the country gave a spurt to the growth of journals dealing with commerce and industry and finance and economics.

Between them these two categories claim 246 journals, of which 118 came into existence in or after 1956. Journals relating to commerce and industry alone numbered 190, the second largest group amongst specialised periodicals.

Among the commerce and industry periodicals, 140 are published in English, 23 in Hindi, seven each in Tamil and Marathi, six in Urdu, four in Gujarati and one in Bengali. In the finance and economics category too English periodicals predominate in numbers. Of the 33 journals in this group, 24 are in English, five in Hindi, one each in Malayalam, Bengali, Marathi and Gujarati.

Bombay has the largest number of periodicals in the commerce and industry and finance and economics groups, with 68 of the first category and eight of the second. Next in order is Calcutta with 37 journals on commerce and industry and seven on finance and economics.

Delhi closely follows Calcutta with 31 journals on commerce and industry and seven on finance and economics.

"Capital", an English weekly which is being published from Calcutta since 1888, is the oldest paper in the commerce and industry class. It has a circulation of 2,430. "Commerce", an English weekly from Bombay, which is being published since 1910, is the largest circulated periodical on commerce and industry in the country, with a circulation of 3,701. "Arthik Prasanga", a Bengali monthly published from Calcutta, has a circulation of 5,142. "Commerce and Industry", an English weekly from Delhi, has a circulation of 1,583.

Among the journals on finance and economics "Indian Finance", an English weekly from Calcutta, which is being published since 1928, is the oldest periodical. It has a circulation of 1,650. "Eastern Economist", an English weekly published from Delhi, is the largest circulated journal in this group, having a circulation of 4,135. "Arthik Jagat", a Bengali weekly, has a circulation of 3,000. "Sampada", a Hindi monthly from Delhi, has a circulation of 3,058 which is the largest claimed by any journal on finance and economics published in any Indian language.

Serialized Fiction

Publications coming in the category of serialised fiction are a class by themselves. They mostly contain detective or other fiction, each issue generally having one complete story, some times more than one. The overall title is the same, that is, the title of the series, but each issue has a separate title, which is really the title of the story published in that issue, or of one of the stories. Although they are more in the nature of books, they have fixed periodicities and have, therefore, been registered with the Press Registrar.

A study of the statistics and circulation of these publications shows that their popularity is on the increase. Out of 90 such publications on the Press Registrar's record, 77 started in or after 1949.

More than half of the periodicals in this category are published in Hindi (46), Urdu coming next with 15. Their distribution in some of the other languages is as follows: Marathi—6; Gujarati—4; Tamil and Kannada—3 each; Bengali—2; and Punjabi, Telugu, Oriya and Sindhi—one each.

Of these periodicals 49 are published from Allahabad in Uttar Pradesh. Bombay and Delhi came next with 14 and 12 respectively. Madras publishes four and Mysore three.

Women's Journals

Women's journals in the country are of comparatively recent origin. In fact, most of the women's journals came into existence in the 50's although the oldest of them, "Arya Mahila", a Hindi monthly from Varanasi, is being published since 1918.

The majority of these journals are published in Indian languages, only six out of 39 being in English.

This, however, does not mean that the English journals are not popular. Three of them claim a circulation between 10,000 to 23,000. "Femina", an English fortnightly from Bombay, claims the highest circulation (23,389), followed by "Eve's Weekly" and "Trend" with circulation of 22,279 and 11,156 respectively. "Femina", which incorporated "Flair", an English monthly of Bombay, was started by the "Times of India" group in 1959.

"Stree", a Marathi monthly from Bombay, has the largest circulation (17,831) of any women's journal published in Indian languages. "Khatoon-E-Mashriq", an Urdu monthly, claims a circulation of 10,000 and "Gori", a Hindi monthly, shows a circulation of 4,426. "Mahila", a Gujarati monthly of Bombay, has a circulation of 5,000.

Engineering and Technology

Numerically journals on engineering and technology do not compare favourably with those dealing with medicine and health or commerce and industry. There are only 60 journals on engineering and technology, of which 42 came into existence in or after 1949.

These journals cover different branches of engineering and technology. Recent additions to this group include journals on power and river valley projects, locomotives, architecture, machinery and machine tools, fuel, telecommunication, electroplating and industrial engineering.

Most of these journals have a limited circulation, not exceeding 1,000 copies per issue. The most widely circulated of them, "Journal of the Institution of Engineers", however, has a circulation of 27,544. The oldest is the "Journal of Scientific and Industrial Research", published by the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research from Delhi. It was established in 1912 and has a circulation of 1,463.

Among other leading journals in this category are: "Quarterly Journal of the Geological Mining and Metallurgical Society of India", established in 1924, and the "Journal of the Association of Engineers", established in 1925. Of the 60 journals on engineering and technology, 20 are published from Calcutta, 18 from Delhi, 11 from Bombay and six from Madras.

Films

There has been considerable increase in the number of film journals during the last few years. Out of 192 such publications in the country, about 100 came into existence in or after 1956. It is also significant that more than 50 of them claim a circulation of 5,000 or above.

The highest circulation among film journals is commanded by "Filmfare", published by the "Times of India" group of papers from Bombay. It has a circulation of 1,06,570. Among other leading film journals are: "Cine Chitra", Hindi weekly (77,500), "Cine Advance", English weekly (56,200), "Screen", English weekly (54,862) and "Pesum Padam", Tamil monthly (54,217). "Film India", published from Bombay, is the most highly priced cine publication, the price of a copy being Rs. 3. It has a circulation of 8,690.

In the wake of the increased popularity of film journals came the first film daily in the country, namely, "Thenval Thirai", in Tamil, which commenced publication from Madras in 1959. The paper was formerly published as a fortnightly. It claims a circulation of 5,792.

The largest number of film journals (47) are published from Madras. Bombay, Delhi and Calcutta come next with 38, 28 and 23 journals respectively.

The oldest of the film journals in the country are "Dipali", a Bengali weekly, and "Chitampet", a Gujarati weekly, which are being published since 1929.

Only 35 out of 167 film journals in the country are published in English. The others are in Indian languages, Tamil claiming the largest share with 27. Their distribution among some of the other languages is as follows: Hindi—25; Urdu—17; Bengali—15.

Sports

Sports journals in the country are small in number and generally have small circulations. Of the 21 such journals, 13 are published in English, four in Bengali, one each in Hindi, Malayalam and Oriya. One sports journal is bi-lingual, being published in Telugu and English.

"Sports and Pastime", published as a weekly by the proprietors of the "Hindu" from Madras, has the highest circulation (27,154). Among those published in Indian languages, "Garer Math", a Bengali weekly from Calcutta, claims the largest circulation (5,695).

Transport and Communications

Journals dealing with transport and communications are published mostly by Government or autonomous bodies. The Indian Railways alone publish 16 journals, including "Indian Railways", issued by the Railway Board from Delhi, which has a circulation of 3,200.

Transport reviews published by different State Government undertakings form the second largest group, next only to the railway journals. Other periodicals in this category cover civil aviation, road transport and shipping. The "Journal of the Indian Road Congress", an English quarterly published from Delhi since 1934, has a circulation of 2,975 and is one of the oldest transport and communications journal. The journal of the Automobile Association of South India, "AASI News", published from Madras as a monthly, claims the largest circulation (12,325).

Agriculture and Animal Husbandry

Nearly half of the journals on agriculture and animal husbandry in the country are published either by Central or State Governments or by autonomous bodies. Of the 79 journals of this category, 23 are published by the Departments of the Government of India or their autonomous bodies, while 12 are issued by the State Governments or their agencies.

The largest number of journals on agriculture and animal husbandry are published in English (37), with Hindi coming next (17). There are six journals in Tamil, five in Marathi, four in Telugu, three in Kannada, two each in Bengali, Gujarati, Malayalam and one in Assamese.

The largest circulated journal on agriculture is "Dharati-Ke-Lal", a Hindi monthly issued by the Ministry of Food and Agriculture. It claims a circulation of 35,000. "Kheti", a Hindi monthly published by the Indian Council of Agriculture Research, has a circulation of 16,937. "Indian Farming", an English monthly issued by the Council of Agriculture Research, has a circulation of 17,642.

Among the State Governments' publications, "Padu Panth", a Telugu monthly published by the Andhra Pradesh Government, has the largest circulation (61,397). "Gram Sevak", a Hindi monthly issued by the Government of Bihar, has a circulation of over 10,250 and "Mezhichelvan", a Tamil monthly of the Government of Madras, a circulation of 20,101.

Journals on tobacco and coconut are being issued by the Central Tobacco Committee and the Indian Central Coconut Committee, each publishing four journals in different languages.

The Bharat Krishak Samaj publishes "Krishak Samachar", an English monthly and "Krishak", a Hindi monthly, which have a circulation of 1,511 and 1,288 respectively. The Young Farmers' Association issues an English monthly entitled "Rural Youth" which has a circulation of 1,700.

The only journal on agriculture economics is published by the Indian Society of Agriculture Economics from Bombay State. The journal has been in existence since 1946 and has a circulation of 700.

Given below is a subject-wise list of specialized journals. Journals in each subject have been arranged accordingly to their language.

THE PRESS IN THE STATES

ANDHRA PRADESH

(State Capital—Hyderabad)

Area : 1,05,700 Sq. Miles

Population : 31,260,133

Percentage of literacy : 13.12 (Males : 19.67 ; Females : 6.48)

With the exception of "Andhra Patrika", which is being published from Madras, all other Telugu dailies are now located in Andhra Pradesh.

There was further concentration of Telugu newspapers in Andhra Pradesh with the establishment of the Express group of newspapers at Vijayawada and Chittoor. Out of 241 Telugu papers published in the country 180 or 74.7 per cent. were being published in 1959 from Andhra Pradesh.

With the addition of five dailies belonging to the Express group, the total number of dailies in Andhra Pradesh increased from 19 to 27. Six of the dailies were published in English, 10 in Telugu, 10 in Urdu and one in Tamil.

Vijayawada, a town with over one lakh of population, and Chittoor, a town with less than one lakh of population, became two important newspaper centres.

Daily newspapers in Andhra Pradesh recorded a rise of 22 per cent. in circulation in 1959 compared to 1958. "Vishalaandhra", a Telugu daily published from Vijayawada, recorded a rise of 43 per cent. Among the Urdu dailies, "Nizam Gazette" from Hyderabad recorded a rise of 28 per cent.

A feature of the Press in Andhra Pradesh was its wide distribution. Over 50 per cent. of the papers, including two dailies, were published from towns with less than one lakh of population. The rest were distributed almost evenly between Hyderabad, the State Capital, and five other towns with a population of over one lakh.

Among the periodicals, "Andhra Prabha Illustrated Weekly" commanded the highest circulation (10,625) followed by "Prajavani" from Guntur and "Vahini" from Vijayawada with a circulation of 8,745 and 7,000 respectively.

During the year under review, 64 new newspapers started and seven ceased publication in the State. Amongst the new papers were nine dailies, including the three Chittoor editions of Express newspapers which actually started in the beginning of 1960 even though declarations in respect of them were filed before the close of 1959.

Out of the seven papers that ceased publication during the year, none had claimed a circulation of above 2,000 for the year 1958 for which their circulation figures were last available.

BOMBAY

(State Capital—Bombay)

Area : 190,668 Sq. Miles

Population 4,82,65,221

Percentage of literacy : 21·64 (Males: 31·70; Females : 10·99).

There were 1,685 newspapers in Bombay State on December 31, 1959, commanding a circulation of 42·01 lakhs. The State thus had the largest number of papers published in any State in India.

During 1959 newspapers in the State registered an 11 per cent increase in their circulation as compared to 1958. Of this, Marathi papers claimed 17 per cent, followed by English (10 per cent) and Gujarati (7 per cent).

Between them, the nine 'Chains' and 50 'Groups' comprising 178 newspapers accounted for 45 per cent of the total circulation in the State.

The first daily to cross the one lakh mark in the State was the "Times of India". From 96,622 in 1958, its circulation reached 1,09,110 in 1959. The circulation of other dailies and periodicals which recorded appreciable increases in circulation in 1959 was as follows:—

Dailies	1958	1959
Free Press Journal (English), Bombay	81,701	87,962
Lokasatta (Marathi), Bombay	61,580	73,826
Sunday Standard (English—Sunday paper), Bombay	49,021	60,838
Indian Express (English), Bombay	43,222	49,399
Sakal (Marathi), Poona	40,241	47,526
Janasatta (Gujarati), Ahmedabad	21,833	29,358
Sandesh (Gujarati), Ahmedabad	20,992	28,158
Lokamitra (Marathi), Bombay	16,230	20,204
Free Press Bulletin (English), Bombay	7,755	10,048
Periodicals
Blitz (English Weekly), Bombay	63,104	87,187
Illustrated Weekly of India (English Weekly), Bombay	63,479	71,153
Screen (English Weekly), Bombay	41,137	54,862
Parag (Hindi Monthly), Bombay	36,292	44,162
Swaraj (Marathi Weekly), Bombay	25,128	31,260
Rekha (Hindi Monthly), Nagpur	16,236	20,188
Chitralok (Gujarati Weekly), Ahmedabad	16,038	19,453

As against these increases, one language daily and one periodical in English registered a fall in circulation. From 39,787 and 1,18,188 in 1958, the circulation of "Maratha" (Marathi daily) and "Filmfare" (English fortnightly), both from Bombay, declined to 33,350 and 1,06,570 respectively in 1959.

In 1959, there was a marked rise in the number of papers published from the State. As against 1,467 at the end of 1958, the number in 1959 was 1,685.

There were 142 dailies in the State constituting 28·9 per cent of the total number of dailies published in the country. In 1959, the circulation commanded by 111 dailies was 13·33 lakhs as compared to 9·51 lakhs commanded by 89 dailies in 1958.

Of the 152 General Interest Newspapers, 106 were dailies and non-dailies belonging to A category and 46 to B category such as market reports and commercial bulletins etc. Of the A category dailies, 90 were published in the morning, ten in the evening, one each bi-weekly and tri-weekly and four weeklies (Sunday papers). The A category dailies had a total circulation of 12·66 lakhs as against only 67 thousand commanded by those belonging to B category.

During 1959, three English newspapers of long standing viz. "Bombay Chronicle" (daily), "Sunday Chronicle" (weekly) and "Bombay Sentinel" (evening daily) ceased publication. Although their individual circulation was below 5,000 the first two had been in existence for the past 45 years and the third for 25 years.

A women's English monthly entitled "Flair", owned by an individual and commanding a circulation of over 4,000, was incorporated in another women's English fortnightly "Femina". The latter was established in 1959 by the country's second largest 'Chain' of papers, viz., Bennett Coleman and Company Ltd. It commanded a circulation of over 23,000 in 1959.

It was also observed that out of 1,600 newspapers about which ownership data were available, 44 per cent were owned by individuals, 20 per cent by societies and associations, 12 per cent by firms and partnership and 9 per cent by joint stock companies. The remaining 15 per cent were owned by the Central and State Governments, educational institutions, trusts and foreign missions. Political parties owned 14 papers and co-operative societies 19.

During 1959, 298 new papers commenced publication in the State and 69 ceased publication. Amongst the new papers 11 were dailies. Of these five were General Interest Newspapers and the rest were all market reports.

KERALA

(State Capital—Trivandrum)

Area : 14,937 Sq. Miles

Population : 1,35,49,118

Percentage of literacy : 40·88 (Males : 50·37 ; Females : 31·65)

An increase of 25 per cent. in the total circulation of Malayalam dailies published in Kerala State was recorded in 1959. The number of Malayalam dailies also increased by 15 per cent.

With the addition of six Malayalam dailies, the total number of daily newspapers in Kerala increased to 37 in 1959. Seven of these were evening newspapers.

Except for one daily, which was published in English only, all the dailies in Kerala were, in fact, Malayalam papers, although eight of them claimed to be bi-lingual (English and Malayalam).

Two of the dailies, "Malayala Manorama" and "Mathrubhumi" which had circulations above 50,000 in 1958, registered further increases in 1959. In the case of "Malayala Manorama" and another daily "Janayugam" the increase was more than 30 per cent. In addition, there were four dailies with circulation above 20,000 each.

The total circulation commanded by 33 dailies in 1959 was 5·40 lakhs as compared to 4·30 lakhs commanded by 29 dailies in 1958.

A feature of the daily press in Kerala was its wide distribution. Except for Adoor, all the other nine districts had their daily newspapers with circulations ranging between 2,000 to 75,000. Two of the district dailies had circulations over 60,000, four above 20,000, and four between 15,000 and 20,000. More than half the total circulation of dailies was commanded by dailies published from towns with less than one lakh population.

The circulation of six leading Malayalam dailies in 1958 and 1959 was as follows:—

1. Malayala Manorama , Kottayam	1958	57,144
	1959	75,548
2. Mathrubhumi , Kozhikode	1958	63,794
	1959	69,952
3. Kerala Kaumudi , Trivandrum	1958	28,939
	1959	34,115
4. Kerala Dhvani , Kottayam (Started in 1959)	1959	22,749
5. Deepika , Kottayam	1958	19,393
	1959	22,236
6. Janayugam , Quilon	1958	16,266
	1959	21,916

Among the periodicals, the highest circulation (78,347) was commanded by "Malayala Manorama", a Malayalam English weekly published from Kottayam, which recorded a 48 per cent. increase in its circulation. "Mathrubhumi", a Malayalam weekly, had the next highest circulation (53,832).

During the year under review, 56 newspapers started publication and three ceased publication. Amongst the new papers were six dailies, all Malayalam, and 50 periodicals. No daily ceased publication.

Out of the total of 240 newspapers published in Madhya Pradesh, 79 per cent. were in Hindi. The State, therefore, had the second largest number of Hindi newspapers published in any State.

Newspapers in Madhya Pradesh recorded a 9 per cent. increase in circulation in 1959 as compared to 1958. Of this, bi-lingual newspapers claimed 22 per cent. and Hindi 13 per cent. Increase in the circulation of English papers was insignificant. Papers in other languages showed a decline in circulation.

In 1959 the circulation commanded by 32 dailies was 1.51 lakh as compared to 1.38 lakh by 29 dailies in 1958. Of this circulation, the share of 27 Hindi dailies was 1.38 lakhs and that of two English and two Urdu dailies .12 lakh each. During the year under review, "Nai Dunia", a Hindi daily from Indore, had the highest circulation (13,858) of all the newspapers in the State. Two other Hindi dailies, namely, "Jagaran" and "Indore Samachar", both from Indore, crossed the 10,000 mark in their individual circulation.

Among the leading periodicals, the highest circulation was commanded by "Krishak Jagat", a Hindi weekly from Bhopal (7,121). "Usha", a Hindi monthly from Dhar, had the next highest circulation (6,167).

There was also an increase in the number of papers published from Madhya Pradesh from 213 at the end of 1958 to 240 on December 31, 1959.

The Hindi daily "Nai Dunia" commenced simultaneous publication from Jabalpur and Raipur during 1959. Similarly, "Dainik Bhaskar", a Hindi daily from Bhopal, owned by an individual, started simultaneous publication from Ujjain. The same owner started an English daily entitled "Madhya Pradesh Herald" from Bhopal. The total number of English dailies thus rose to three, all from the State Capital.

Of the total number of papers published from Madhya Pradesh, 35 were those which were, strictly speaking, not newspapers. Out of these one was a market report.

During the year under review, 54 new papers started publication in Madhya Pradesh and four ceased publication. Amongst the new papers were eight dailies—seven in Hindi and one in English. This brought the number of dailies published from Madhya Pradesh to 46. Out of these, there was one which was, strictly speaking, not a newspaper. Amongst new publications six belonged to B category i.e., market reports, school magazines etc.

The State of Madras lost eight leading newspapers, including three dailies, in 1959 consequent on the closure of the 'Express' group of papers published from Madras. The loss of dailies was partly off-set by the publication of two new Tamil dailies during the year.

The three dailies that closed down were: "Indian Express" (English), "Dinamani" (Tamil), and "Andhra Prabha" (Telugu). With the closure of "Andhra Prabha" the State was left with only one Telugu daily namely, "Andhra Patrika".

Despite the loss of three dailies, the total number of dailies in Madras increased to 32 in 1959 as against 28 in 1958. Two new Tamil dailies started publication and two Tamil fortnightlies were converted into dailies.

One of the fortnightlies converted into a daily was "Thenral Therai", the first film daily in the country.

Tamil newspapers in Madras State recorded an 18 per cent. increase in circulation in 1959 as compared to 1958. The increase in the circulation of English papers was 15 per cent. and in that of Telugu papers 14 per cent. Malayalam newspapers, on the other hand, showed a decline in their circulation.

Dailies increased their circulation by 22 per cent. Of these the "Hindu" crossed the one-lakh mark and came to have the highest circulation (1,10,973) commanded by a single edition of any daily in the country.

"Nava India" and "Janashakti", two Tamil dailies, increased their circulation by 82 per cent. and 42 per cent. respectively.

"Thanthi", a Tamil daily, which had the largest circulation amongst language dailies, further increased its circulation.

DELHI

(Union Capital—New Delhi)

Area : 573 Sq. Miles

Population : 17,44,072

Percentage of literacy : 38·36 (Males : 42·99 ; Females : 32·34)

Newspapers in Delhi registered a 9 per cent. increase in circulation in 1959 as compared to 1958. Of this Hindi papers claimed 21 per cent. and English 6 per cent. Increases in Urdu, Bengali, Kannada and Punjabi were of a lower order. Papers in other languages showed a decline in circulation.

In 1959 the circulation commanded by 17 dailies was 3·76 lakhs as compared to 3·52 lakhs commanded by 17 dailies in 1958. Of this circulation the share of five English dailies was 1·85 lakhs and that of three Hindi dailies 1·21 lakhs.

During the year under review two Hindi dailies, namely, "Hindustan" and "Nav Bharat Times" (Delhi edition only) crossed the 50,000 mark in their individual circulation.

There was an increase in the circulation of all the five leading English dailies published from the Capital, as follows:—

Hindustan Times	1958	.	.	.	63,231
						1959	.	.	.	70,519
Indian Express	1958	.	.	.	41,576
						1959	.	.	.	52,057
Times of India	1958	.	.	.	25,040
						1959	.	.	.	30,155
Statesman	1958	.	.	.	18,870
						1959	.	.	.	19,546
Hindusthan Standard	1958	.	.	.	11,785
						1959	.	.	.	12,649

Among the language dailies, the "Hindustan", reached a circulation of 51,785 from its circulation of 47,902 in 1958. The next highest circulation among language dailies was that of "Nav Bharat Times" which rose from 46,056 to 51,158. In Urdu the highest circulation was commanded by "Milap" (21,255). Next came "Pratap" with 19,350.

Among leading periodicals the highest circulation was commanded by "Astana", an Urdu monthly (77,967). "Shama", also an Urdu monthly, had the next highest circulation (57,166). Two other Urdu papers, namely, "Biswin Sadi" and "Din Duniya", both monthlies, which were included in the list of papers with circulation between 20,000 and 50,000 in the 1958 Report, did not send in their Annual Returns for 1959.

For comparing the 1958 and 1959 circulation of papers in Delhi 410 papers have been taken into account, for which data were available for both the years.

In 1959, however, circulation data were available for 568 papers which commanded a circulation of 23.39 lakhs, as compared to 20.04 lakhs commanded by 536 papers in 1958.

There was also an increase in the number of papers published from Delhi from 698 at the end of 1958 to 744 on December 31, 1959.

A feature of the Press in Delhi was that newspapers were published in 13 out of the 14 languages mentioned in the Constitution, the only exception being Assamese. One paper was published in Sindhi and All India Radio published programme journals in Pushtu, Tibetan, Arabic, Burmese, Persian, Chinese and Indonesian.

Of the total number of papers published from Delhi 190 were those which were not, strictly speaking, newspapers. Out of these two were market reports, one weather bulletin, and 11 were cyclostyled news bulletins.

During the year under review 148 new papers started publication in Delhi and 51 ceased publication. Amongst the new papers were two dailies—one in Punjabi and one in Urdu. This brought the number of dailies published from Delhi to 27. Out of these 27 there were seven which were, strictly speaking, not newspapers.

Amongst new publications 36 belonged to the 'B' category, i.e., market reports, school magazines etc. Out of the new publications, one, namely, "Sushma", a Hindi monthly, attained a circulation of more than 19,000 during the year. Five more papers reached circulation above 5,000.

Out of the papers that ceased publication during the year none had a circulation of above 2,000 during the year 1958 for which their circulation figures were last available.

INDEX OF NEWSPAPERS	598—696

CATALOGUE OF NEWSPAPERS

Part II of the Press Registrar's Report contains a State-wise catalogue of newspapers. Formerly, when the Report was submitted, in one volume, the catalogue for each State was preceded by a brief introduction outlining the main features of the Press in each State and Union Territory. This year a study of the Press in each State has been included in Part I and this part, therefore, gives only the catalogue of papers published in different States.

The papers in each State have been listed periodicity-wise, and under each periodicity the languages are given in the following order: English, Hindi, other languages specified in the Constitution, in alphabetical order. Languages like Sindhi, Manipuri etc., have been grouped under "Others". Bi-lingual and multi-lingual papers have been shown separately.

In accordance with the new pattern for the study of data and statistics followed in Part I, quarterlies, half-yearlies etc. have been grouped together, but their individual periodicities have been indicated. Annuals have been shown separately.

In the Report for 1958 the classification of each paper, based on its contents, was added to the particulars of the paper given in the catalogue. Another addition has been made in this Report. Item No. VIII in the lists gives the circulation of the paper, with its break-up into copies sold and copies distributed free. Wherever the circulation was required to be certified by a chartered accountant or qualified auditor and has not been so certified, the fact has been indicated in the catalogue by adding the word "uncertified" against the circulation figure. No such certificate is necessary where the circulation of a paper does not exceed 2,000 copies per issue or the paper belongs to a charitable society or trust or an educational institution and is published, generally, for the use of members and not for sale. The circulation of such papers has been given in the same form as certified circulation.

At the end of the catalogue an Index has been appended.

The particulars against each paper have been given as follows:—

- (i) Address and place of publication.
- (ii) Name of publisher.
- (iii) Name of printer.
- (iv) Name of editor.
- (v) Retail selling price.
- (vi) Name of printing press.
- (vii) Name of owner.
- (viii) Circulation (S stands for copies sold and F for copies distributed free).
- (ix) Classification (G.I.N. stands for 'General Interest Newspaper').

The figure in brackets is the date of establishment of the paper.
